ACHS officials plan for school expansion without taxes

By JACLYN GRAHAM
Staff Intern

Without increasing taxes, Antioch Community High School is adding on 60,000 feet of new space through a large state construction grant. "We are doing it in a creative financial way," said ACHS principal James Love.

As enrollment numbers climb, the addition aims to serve the growing number of students at ACHS. There were over 1,800 students this year, and about 1,950 students are expected for next year. "They're out there, and we can see them coming," said Superintendent Dennis Hockney.

To a group of alumni touring the under-construction addition of ACHS, Hockney said, "You will see a contrast from what you remember school being like." Included in the addition is a new entryway leading straight into the office area, with the commons on the left.

There will be a beautiful two-story atrium, curved limestone walls, new washrooms, and new classrooms like chemistry labs, physics labs, general classrooms, new kitchens, sewing labs, and large, bright art rooms. The new home economics room will have six kitchens, complete with a walk-in refrigerator/freezer and a place for dry storage.

Also, the new library will be fifty percent larger than the previous one, with carpeted floors and plenty of lighting provided by both electricity and sunlight. The classrooms will include whiteboards instead of the chalky blackboards, and each will include internet access capability.

So its equipment never becomes too outdated, ACHS has five, five-year computer leases, staggered by a year. There were about 500 computers throughout ACHS this year. The new technology room will include computers with pods, or modules.

Due to the extremely good weather, the construction is moving along right on schedule. Hockney and other visitors mentioned how well the construction is being put together, that the mortar in the creases and other minute parts of the process are being handled with great precision.

After a tour of the new building, Ralph Gussarson, ACHS class of '42 alumni said, "As a great grandfather, I'd say this is money well spent."

Hockney hopes that the addition will provide an even larger learning environment for all of their students.

Antioch imposes water restrictions

By Michael H. Babicz
Staff Reporter

The Village of Antioch is paying close attention to the weather with the apparent early onset of summer-like hot and humid conditions.

Village Manager Tim Wells announced at the June 7 board meeting plans for coping with possible strains on the village water system.

"We're not there yet, but if we don't keep getting some rain, we could be much sooner than normal," explained Wells regarding the institution of water usage restrictions.

When the village water department determines it necessary, the restrictions would be put into effect. Announcement would be made by putting up signs at various locations within the village, as well as through local media including area radio stations.

Wells explained the problem does not generally come from village residents using too much water as individuals, but more of a combination of that usage along with the industrial usage of manufacturers within the village.

"During the day, from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m., the industrial park area uses approximately 450,000 gallons," explained Wells. "As a village, we do about 1 million gallons per day, so the industrial park's consumption makes up about 40 percent."

"It's not a lack of water," Wells continued. "It's the heavy usage put on the pumps and the increased demand placed on the mechanical parts of the system."

If put into effect, the water restriction would be to limit lawn

Officials talk about raising flood plain

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

Concerns regarding a decision to raise the flood plain in the Loon Lakes area will be aired at a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, June 24 at the Antioch Senior Center.

The hearing, called by the Loon Lakes Management Association Board, results from a move by Lake County Stormwater Management Commission raising the flood plain three feet from its existing level.

"This will have a major impact on construction projects planned for the area, septic systems and flood insurance rates," explained Mark Sherman, board member. "This is a huge issue for all of the residents around Loon Lakes."

Despite having met with storm water management representatives, Loon Lakes board members remain

'Brooms to frying pans' coming to Faire

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

Everything from hand made brooms to painted old frying fans will be available at the 23rd Annual Arts & Crafts Faire to be held Saturday and Sunday, June 19 and 20.

Coordinated by the Antioch Chamber of Commerce, the show will feature 100 artisans, crafters, food booths and a farmer's market will take over Toft Street for the weekend.

Sharon Manka, last year's feature artist, will be back by popular demand with her exquisite depictions of wildlife captured in oil painting.

"The dates are about the same as they always are each year," said Dan Sills of Betty Sills Art Gallery, who is in his third year as faire volunteer coordinator.

"We've rented all of our spaces," Sills explained. "We've made an attempt about two years ago to obtain new exhibitors by advertising in some of the national arts and crafts publications. This has proved quite successful as we about one-third of our exhibitors are new.

"We had an estimated over 7,000 persons attend last summer's show," Sills said, noting the Chamber traditionally holds a second faire in September.

Show exhibitors are coming from six states including Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Iowa and Florida. "We even had interest expressed from a vendor from Alaska," said Mo Ferguson of the Chamber, who serves as registration coordinator.

Ferguson and Sills both confirmed that approximately one-third of the venders having been making the summertime stop in Antioch for over 10 years.

Having begun at Williams Park next to the swimming pool, the show grew and it needed a new location with more space for vendors and additional parking.

At its present site, there are six public parking lots available including the addition of three new lots located to the east of the Main Street business area between Park Avenue and Orchard Street.

Among the types of offerings expected, according to Ferguson, there will be wood crafts, stained glass, aluminum sculptures, iron work, puppets, hand-made clothing, Redwood signs on site, hand-made brooms, wooden furniture and wooden folding baskets along with many other items.

In the arts section, there will be pencil art, water colors, stoneware, flowers, fabric arts, tuned wind chimes, textiles, sandstone, several types of hand-painted wooden items and ceramics.

"We have a woman coming who does recycled kitchen items," explained Ferguson. "She takes old pots and pans, then paints pictures on them."

The always popular farmer's market is returning to its usual location.

"They tell me they've been here forever, since day one," said Sills. "They always have the same spot and the people look forward to them being here."

For those working up an appetite while looking at all of the displays, two local businesses will be highlighting their wares.

Osmond updates mayors

Communication key to keeping close contact between communities

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

Area officials received a good report on the spring legislative session for the Illinois General Assembly from State Rep. Tim Osmond.

Osmond

"The Illinois General Assembly has had a very productive spring session," said Osmond (R-Antioch). "Keeping local legislators informed of state policies is part of my job."

Sales taxes, funding from Illinois Art Council and Gov. George Ryan's Illinois FIRST program headed the topics discussed by Osmond at a luncheon update meeting held in Waukegan.

Among those attending were Antioch Mayor Marilyn Shineflug, Lake Villa Mayor Fred Loffredo and Fox Lake Mayor Jim Pappas.

"Communicating with the mayors of our district is essential in keeping local and state governments connected," Osmond said in thanking the mayors for attending.

Illinois FIRST sparked interest with the announcement of $133 million being invested in Lake County improvements. Projects including mass transit, road construction and school rehabilitation are among those benefiting from the funds.

"We greatly appreciate Rep. Osmond's work to secure the Illinois FIRST funding," said Shineflug. Antioch is to receive $650,000 to be used for construction of bike/walk paths to be put in near the existing Antioch Upper Grade School along with the new school to be constructed on Antioch's east side.

"The project will help create a safe and convenient way for children to get to Antioch schools," Shineflug added.

"We've never had an opportunity to receive an update from our state representative," said Loffredo. "Personally, I found it very helpful. I walked away with a great deal of material, and renewed excitement for what the state has to offer smaller communities."

Osmond intends to continue hosting the meetings to provide local officials the opportunity to give feedback.

"This ensures I'm doing my job in Springfield," Osmond said. "I want to know how my constituents feel, and I want to let them know state money is being spent on important projects."

Board approves road easement

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Village Board approved June 7 an easement for access to Deer Path Drive adjacent to the Pine Hill Lakes subdivision.

The request by Don Neville, owner of 10 acres along Deep Lake Road adjacent to the Pine Hill property, is to allow a private road to connect his parcel to Deer Path Drive.

Neville plans to divide his parcel into two, 5-acre lots, with he and his wife living on one lot and another family member and their family constructing a home and residing on the other lot.

The "sliver of land" separating the Neville property and Deer Path Drive is owned by Scarsdale Homes, Pine Hill Lakes developers.

Although Bob Silhan, village director of planning, zoning and building, initially planned to accept and approve the request administratively, upon recommendation of Village Attorney Kenneth Clark it was decided to bring the matter before the board.

The board voted to authorize the mayor to execute the easement.

It was noted the roadway, which will be considered a private drive, should not be more than 35 feet wide per the village's agreement with Nevilles.

This requirement would not allow for the drive to eventually work into becoming a public roadway. The width restriction would not allow it to meet village or state requirements to be considered a public right-of-way.

In another board meeting matter, a village ordinance prohibiting solicitation or acceptance of gifts was briefly discussed.

Village Attorney Kenneth Clark recommended going with a proposed version put out by the Illinois Municipal League.

"Their version provides further clarification of a rather confusing act," Clark explained.

The ordinance, required according to state statute, must be in effect by July 1.

Due to the possible court challenges the state statute is expected to bring, Clark explained if it is found "unconstitutional," Antioch's ordinance would automatically lapse.

"I'd like to know where all these gifts are anyway," quipped Mayor Marilyn Shineflug.

Clark plans to present the revised ordinance to the board at its June 21 meeting for adoption.

Steve Sodman, owner of property located at 386-388-390 Lake St., has requested approval of the village for a "Buy Down" Loan.

The request is being made because the property is within a Tax Increment Financing (TIF) District. The village would agree to payment of $1,392.51 of the initial loan costs. This will allow Sodman to obtain a $15,000 loan with a major reduction in interest rate from 8.75 percent to 3.75 percent.

Sodman intends to use the funds to do building improvements.

The board is expected to approve the request at its next meeting.

Bricks will be available from the 1915 Antioch Community High School building, and although there will not be one set charge, the school will always accept donations.

Call the school for further information if you are interested in keeping a piece of the school's history alive after it is torn down this summer.

Also, the Antioch, Lake Villa, and Lindenhurst (A.L.L.) Parent Network is selling commemorative bricks to be placed in the hallway wall near the main entrance leading to the commons area. A three line 4 by 8 inch brick is $30, and a five line 8 by 8 inch brick is $60.

'Bye Bye Birdie' musical continues at PM&L Theatre

By JACLYN GRAHAM
Staff Intern

The Elvis era is back! Or at least a spoof of it, that is. On weekends through June 27, Palette-Masque-Lyre (PM&L) Theater is presenting the musical production of the '50s craze "Bye Bye Birdie," written by Michael Stewart, music by Charles Srouse, and lyrics by Lee Adams.

The musical is a story of an Elvis-type singer named Conrad Birdie that is drafted into the United States Army. His devastated agent, Albert Peterson, and his secretary Rose Alvarez, create a scheme for Birdie's last publicity stunt to get Albert out of debt.

The scheme creates a wave of mass teenage hysteria over the nation, as a randomly picked fan club member, Kim MacAfee, is chosen to receive a kiss from Birdie as his last hurrah. Between screaming teens and appalled parents, the nation is in an uproar over Birdie.

Aside from the funny and entertaining script, this musical also features some well-known songs, such as "Put on a Happy Face" and "Kids."

To make reservations, contact PM&L at 395-3055.

Events happening all around town

This weekend will be a busy weekend in the Antioch area for a number of reasons.

First is the 23rd Annual Arts & Crafts Faire Saturday and Sunday, June 19 and 20, on Toft Avenue. Hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday. Sponsored by the Antioch Chamber of Commerce & Industry, this annual event presents 100 vendors from throughout the midwest.

The 8th Annual "Firecracker Sports Tournament", hosted by First National Bank-Employee Owned, is planned for Saturday, July 3.

With Father's Day being Sunday, June 20, I'd like to interject a personal note.

My father, Henry A. Babicz, of North Chicago, passed away in April. This Sunday, my sister, Jean of Villa Park, and I will continue a tradition which was begun several years ago. Dad always loved to go fishing on Lake Michigan. My sister and I would take dad out on Father's Day aboard the charter boat OK Doke of the Waukegan Charter Boat Assn. captained by a long time family friend Frank "Buddy" Ostrowski.

OUR TOWN

Michael H. Babicz

This Sunday, we will continue the tradition, knowing that dad will be with us in spirit, hopefully guiding Buddy to the right spot for the big fish.

I would encourage all of our readers, no matter how young or old, to take the time this weekend to spend with their father, grandfather, or a person who fills the father figure role for them. One never knows when it will be the last father's day you will have the opportunity to spend with them. Give them an extra hug and tell them how much they mean to you. It will provide you, and them, with many long lasting memories.

To my dad, I say thanks, and we'll see you on the lake.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Mike Babicz at 223-8161, ext. 155 or e-mail, edit@lnd.com."

Lindenhurst police get grant

The Lindenhurst Police Department has been notified by the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority that they have been awarded a federally-funded block grant of $11,631 to purchase mobile computer equipment. The federal portion equals 90 percent of the estimated cost of the equipment. The remaining 10 percent is the obligation of the Village.

The project is intended to allow the Village to purchase two laptop computers and their associated software to be used for data access on the state and federal level. They will also receive an transmit direct dispatch information on the local level through the E-911 public safety answering point. Ultimately they will be used for report writing through word processing.

A second unrelated federal COPS Universal Hiring Program grant for $75,000 was also awarded to the Village this month. This money would allow the employment of an additional full-time police officer by providing partial funding of $25,000 per year for three years.

During 1995 the Village received its first such COPS grant which enabled the Police to add one new position at that time. The Village is in full compliance with the requirements of the grants programs and their associated audit procedures.

Sewer funding looks promising

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

Too many meetings, too little time.

The United Homeowners Association of Unincorporated Antioch (UHAUA) canceled its June 15 meeting due to many other meetings which were "in the works," according to Chris Peters, UHAUA president.

UHAUA is continuing to work with state, county and township officials to discuss results from the sewer study survey conducted by the group.

"The survey was favorable," explained Peters. "The people are favorable to obtain sewers. Some of the reasons which residents gave in saying no are related to the cost factor."

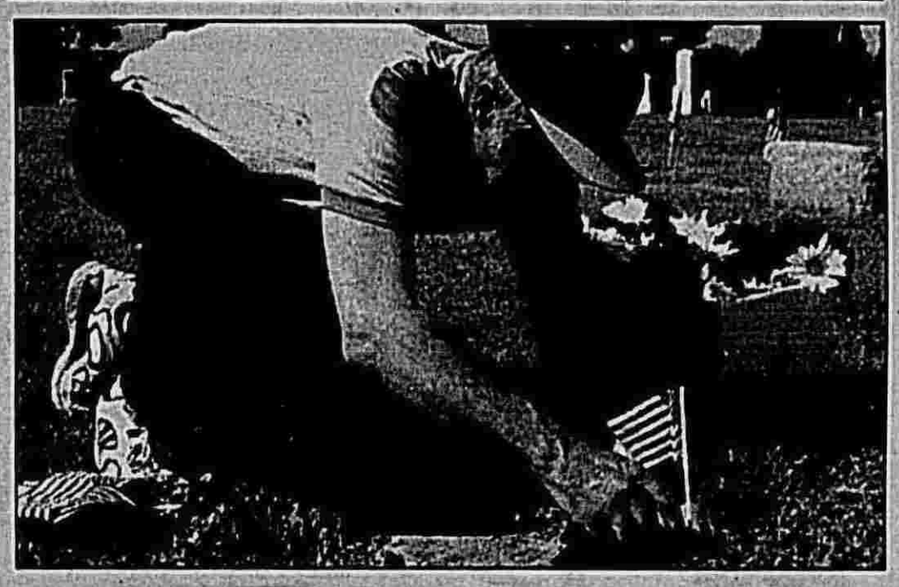

As a result, UHAUA is spearheading a drive to obtain funding assistance for the project.

Meetings have been held with Martin Galantha, Lake County Department of Public Works superintendent; Antioch Township Supervisor Steve Smouse; and Tony Smithson of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA).

A meeting with area elected officials is being scheduled in the near future.

The next UHAUA meeting is planned for August. Updates on the progress of obtaining funding will head the agenda.

Persons in unincorporated Antioch currently have well water and septic service.

WATER: Sprinkling ban imposed sprinkling, car washing, and similar high water usage activities to be done between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m.

During this time, the demand placed upon the system from the industrial users is at its lowest.

In addition, Wells notes that from his personal information regarding lawn care, it is not good to water during the day anyway when the weather is hot.

"This doesn't pertain to holding a hose by hand and watering flowers," Mayor Marilyn Shineflug interjected, which Wells confirmed.

In response to trustees concern expressed regarding the poor paint condition of the village water tower, Wells explained the village is waiting for a response from Metra.

Plans are for the construction of a new tower at the Metra site. The completion of the project, once approval from Metra is received, would probably come sometime in 2000.

After that tower is in operation, the existing tower is expected to be demolished.

Wells explained according to today's standards, the old 100,000 gallon tower is not adequate to meet the recommendation of having a minimum of one day's water supply in storage.

The cost effectiveness of repairing and repainting the old tower would not be within the village's best fiscal interest with the anticipation of the new tower being operation within one to two years.

In a building related matter, Village Attorney Kenneth Clark noted he is finalizing the language of the new proposed electrical code. The board is expected to receive it for a first reading at the June 21 meeting.

Shineflug or Wells were approved by the board to represent the village at SWALCO meetings for the next two years.

NEIGHBORS

Name: Karolyn Wotring

Occupation: Owner of a new resale shop in Lindenhurst called Carpentet's Kids. I've worked for two of the largest Financial Firms in Chicago's Loop, taking the train—playing the corporate part—one day I had to ask myself, "Why am I doing this? Does it really make me happy?" I took a good hard look inside myself and I saw a child of God, Lenny's wife, and Colin's mother, and I'm proud to fill that role.

Store thoughts: In addition to kid's resale items, we will soon carry a full line of Kids Christian Bookstore merchandise, such as Veggie Tales and Magee and Me. There are definitely too many negative influences from the world on children today, and if my merchandise can teach them anything about doing the right thing or letting them know how special they are to God, that's why I'm here!

Community involvement: I'm new to the area, but I'm looking to join the Lindenhurst/ Lake Villa Chamber of Commerce.

I'm originally from: McHenry

My family consists of: My husband Lenny and my son Colin.

What I like best about my town: We're not from Lindenhurst, but I can't wait to move here, the people are very nice and very willing to help out. They seem to be truly good people.

What I like best about my job: I love being with my son, and I love feeling like I'm helping people to be good stewards of their money.

I relax by: Spending time with my family.

Last book I read: The Bible—it keeps my life in the right direction when I have my morning bible study—quiet times. It helps me to stay focused on what's really important.

Favorite restaurant: Le Titi de Paris

Favorite band or musician: Darlene Zschech

If I won the lottery, I would: I don't play! I guess it just seems kind of silly.

I want to be remembered as: A godly woman, a great friend, and a great mom. If one day, I make it to Heaven, and I hear the voice of God tell me, "Well done, my good and faithful servant," my dream will have come true!

Most interesting person I ever met was: My husband, that's why I married him! We've been together since my junior year in high school. I guess you could say that outside of my relationship with God, Lenny "completes me."

My dream job would be: I'm doing it!

Kite offers unique aerial photos

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

Antioch photographer Michael J. Brown is the recipient of the Award of Merit at the 25th Annual Audubon Art Fair in Milwaukee.

Brown's photographic work will be displayed at the St. Benedict's Abbey Arts & Crafts Fair from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, July 10. Admission is free, with food and entertainment available on the Abbey's shaded grounds.

Large format landscape imagery along with unique "birds eye" views of Wisconsin lighthouses earned the merit award at the Audubon Fair.

Kite aerial photographs taken by Brown are made by lifting a camera into the sky aboard a kite. This process offers unique and more detailed views than airplane photos are able to do.

Using a 14-foot wingspan kite, Brown is easily able to get his three pounds of camera equipment attached to the kite's line.

Once airborne, the film camera is a microvideo system, transmitting pictures down to a pocket television which Brown has on the ground.

When the composition looks good, Brown fires the camera using a radio trigger system.

More information on Brown's fine art color photos may be found on his website http://members.aol.com/mjbrown.

Regarding additional information on the Abbey Fair, contact Brother Richard Aplington (414) 396-4311 or 395-8360.

Edinburgh, The Scottish Capital Built Around a Castle

by JIM WARNKEN,
President, North Star Travel, Inc.

Since the Memorial Day weekend gave me an extra day off, I decided to spend a couple of days in London. However, since this was a last-minute decision, the only flights I could get to the United Kingdom were into Glasgow, Scotland arriving Saturday and a return flight leaving from London, on Monday. Since the super fast Britrail trains make the trip from Glasgow to London in about four hours, this posed no great problem.

According to my Britrail representative, the most scenic train route from Scotland to London is from Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland. Edinburgh is only an hour from Glasgow, so I thought I would include a day in Edinburgh and get the train to London from there. As it turned out Edinburgh was the highlight of my trip.

My flight landed at the Glasgow airport about 10 AM on Saturday and after clearing customs, catching the bus to the train station in town, and boarding one of the trains to Edinburgh, which run every 30 minutes, I was at Waverley Station in downtown Edinburgh by noon.

After climbing the stairs from Waverley Station to Prince Street, (Edinburgh's version of Michigan Avenue) I turned and looked up to see a 1,000-year-old castle high on a hill right in the middle of the city! I've seen many castles on my trips through Europe, but never one so easily accessible.

After checking into my hotel, the Inter-Continental "George", I headed back toward the castle. The path to the castle took me by a little park right out of "Mary Poppins" complete with a merry-go-round, and then up a steep hill through beautifully landscaped flower gardens.

The magnificent view of the city and the surrounding terrain from the castle is not only breathtaking, but also gives one an idea of the strategic importance of the location of the castle during Scotland's wars of independence.

Once inside I got to see Scotland's ancient crown jewels which were missing for over a hundred years and found at the bottom of an oak chest in a small room in the castle in 1818.

I was ready to leave for London on the 9 AM train on Sunday. Even though my time in London was already limited, I chose to take the 1 PM train instead, just to have a few more hours in the intriguing city of Edinburgh.

'Twas the last day of school

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Lynn Pringle

Summer doesn't officially arrive until Monday, but around here the season is off and running as soon as that dismissal bell rings on the last day of school. From a child's point of view, the last day, although only one hour in duration, seems to linger like a long lost relative after Christmas. As parents, we wonder why schools are allowed to finagle such a stunt. Why do school administrators feel the need to drag parents through that whole dreadful "morning routine" for one lousy hour? We are still obligated to set alarms, lay out clothes, scream about hair and teeth brushing, and argue with our First Grader that, regardless of the fact you are only going to be in school for an hour, goggles and flippers, along with your new bathing suit, is not proper school attire.

Parents whose children wear school uniforms succumb to this scenario more often as their children have no clue what is considered "proper school attire." The theory behind this madness is school's get great pleasure out of serving parents with this injustice, it's their way of sticking out their tongues and waggling "ha, ha, we have put up with your children's antics for the past nine months, now lets see how well you handle the urchins for the next three."

The last day of school creates major headaches, especially for parents who work. Here they send their child off to school for one hour, fine and dandy, but what are they suppose to do with them the other seven hours until they are able to get home?

The options are: let them spend the day home alone, while burning up the phone line between your kitchen and your office, or use up one of your precious vacation days which are hoarded for more important events like golf outings and afternoon baseball games. The official parent handbook doesn't justify using a vacation day to stay at home with offspring, and most company handbooks don't justify calling in sick for such a reason, as ill as it may cause you to stay in such close proximity to one's own flesh and blood for long periods at a time.

So parents find themselves making cold calls to neighbors, school mate parents, and any local puberty-bound baby-sitter within the school district praying someone will be willing to spend their day overseeing the young. Bus accessibility to the adult supervision is a must or the headaches are compounded. From a parents point of view, one hour school days should be outlawed whereas 12 month school years, like uniforms, should be required.

From a child's perspective, well they think parents are idiots anyway, so what difference does it make?

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

These beautiful and distinctive views from the heartland capture the ambiance of Lake County. Meet the artists of the Lakes Region Watercolor Guild whose work is on display in the exhibit at an Artists' reception on Sunday, June 27 from 1:30 to 4 p.m., at the Lake County Museum. The reception is free with general admission to the Museum.

Admission to the Lake County Museum is $2.50 for adults, $1 for students ages 4 to 17. Children under 4 are free. Admission to the Museum is free on Tuesdays. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 1 to 4:30 p.m. on Sundays.

The Lake County Museum is located in Lakewood Forest Preserve on Route 176, just west of Fairfield Road near Wauconda. For more information on Lake County's Backyard and Beyond, call Mary Ellen Mason, communications and development coordinator at 526-7878, ext. 22.

'Out with the old—'

Beginning Monday, June 14, and throughout the renovation period, the Museum's Lake County history galleries will be closed. The new exhibits will be unveiled in late fall 1999.

During the renovation, the Museum's main entrance, store, meeting room, education center and special exhibit galleries will remain open to the public. For two weeks, beginning Aug. 2 through 13, both public exhibit galleries will be closed. The archives and staff offices will remain open. The special exhibit galleries will reopen on Saturday, Aug. 14.

"Generations of Lake County Museum visitors have come to love some of the old exhibits—the water pump, clothes line and pioneer toys. Visitors are invited to experience these old friends one last time before they are disassembled to make way for the new exhibits," said Katherine Hamilton-Smith, curator of Historical Resources for the Lake County Museum.

Lake County Mall of History

Featuring the Lake County Mall of History, Roller Coaster to History, and Bringing the World Home, the new 6,850 square foot of exhibits will expand the Lake County Museum's overall exhibit space to 8,450 square feet and allow the Museum to display over 20,000 of its finest artifacts. The Millions of Postcards exhibit and the new Curt Teich Postcard Access Center, scheduled for a spring 2000 opening, will showcase the visual treasures housed in the Museum's Curt Teich Postcard Archives.

The Museum's new exhibits will reveal the unique development of Lake County and its historical, cultural and social contributions to society, from prehistoric times to the present. Program and special events will center around the exhibits' unique features and promote the importance of relaying history to future generations.

A giant, state-of-the-art, orange and white NASCAR-themed mobile unit outfitted with a #20 Home Depot racing simulator and interactive tool workshops will be available for the public's enjoyment at no cost.

Now, to complete a full racing kind-of-a-weekend, fans are encouraged to come out to Wilmot Speedway this Saturday night, when the historic track hosts its first major sprint car special of the season, "Jamin' In June", which is presented by Ray & Raymond Chevrolet of Antioch and Fox Lake.

Kafer moving on

ACHS AD heads to Geneva

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

It was a great five years as Athletic Director at Antioch High School, but Jim Kafer has decided to move on-again.

"It looked like a great opportunity and one that was in my best interests," said Kafer, who resigned recently and will begin his duties as athletic director this fall at Geneva High School, located in the far western suburbs in Elgin.

"There was a host of new challenges that looked inviting at this time," he added.

Plus, the move puts Kafer a little closer his home in West Dundee, where wife Joyce and his two children Jay, 5, and Mary, who will be 2, most likely welcome the transition.

""My family, particularly my wife, have been very supportive in my endeavors," said Kafer. "The hours are pretty demanding in this job and they have made a lot of additional sacrifices, for which I'm very grateful for."

In addition, Kafer served as the president of the North Suburban Confference and and played a key role in that league's new 12-team re-alignment, which will be effective in the year 2000-01.

Many great teams and athletes have passed through Antioch in Kafer's short but sweet stay at the North Suburban school.

"Most of the programs have had the opportunity to enjoy success," he said. "That's what athletics and activities are all about-if you work hard, good things happen!"

"We aren't one of the traditional powers, but our teams have done very well, winning conference and regional titles over the years."

Kafer is an graduate of City High School in Iowa City, Iowa. He had his share of success in athletics, lettering in football, baseball and track.

Kafer's career started when he coached and taught at West High School in Iowa City from 1977-1982. From there, he spent eight years (1982-89) as head football coach at Carroll High School in Carroll, Iowa. He also coached baseball and track.

Kafer then moved to the collegiate ranks for a brief one-year stint as assistant football coach at Illinois Benedictine College. He then went to on to become athletic director at St. Edwards High School in Elgin for the ensuing three years, before coming to Antioch.

"I always wanted to be in a position where I could be challenged," he said. "I just was never willing to take a job I wasn't willing to stay at for the rest of my career. In other words, I was and am always open to new opportunities."

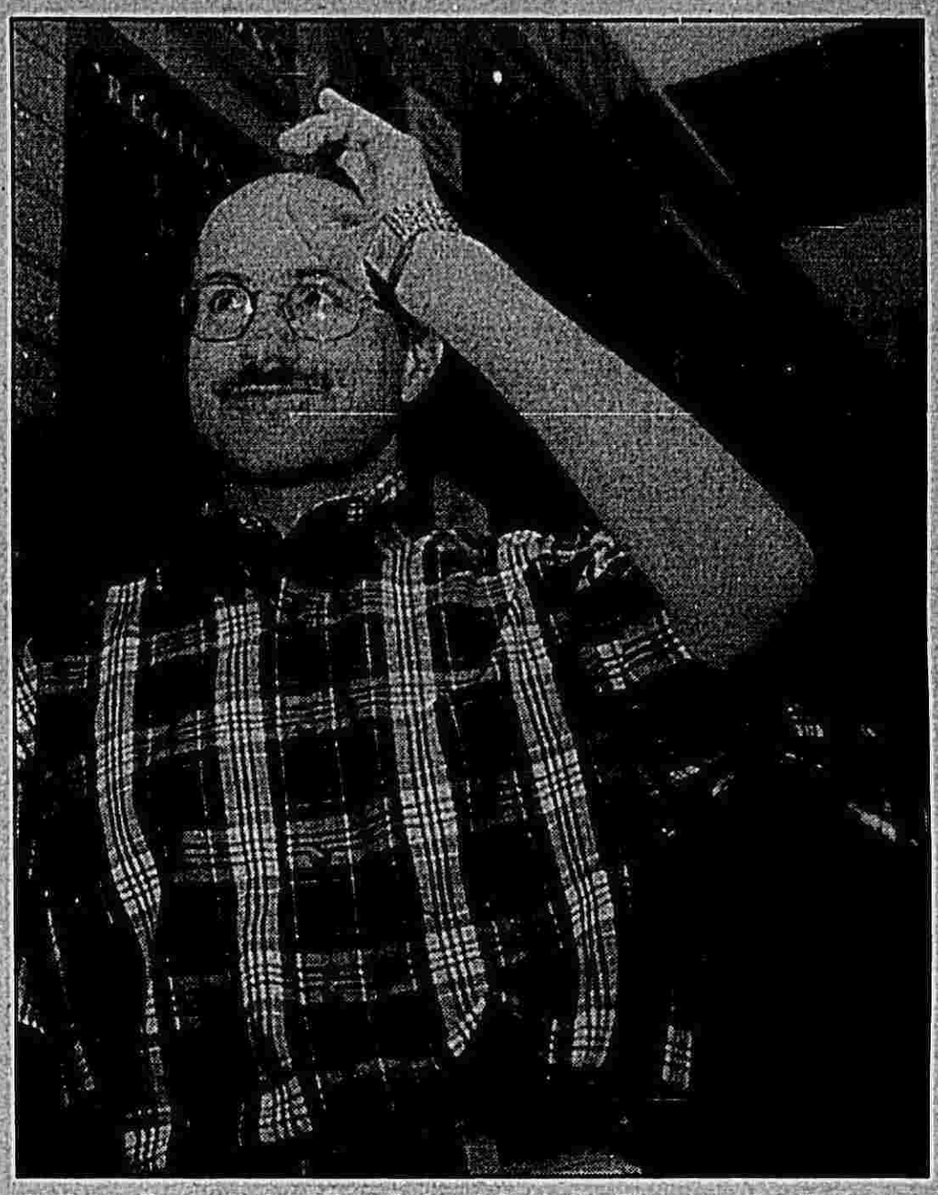

Kafer went on to say that people are the one's who make the difference, especially at Antioch, where many athletes and students will miss his presence.

"The coaching staff, students, and a very supportive community have been tremendous," he said. "They're the one's who give you that chance to succeed, which makes things that much more enjoyable."

Furthermore, Kafer went on to say that the solid relationships he's developed with ACHS and the community have provided the chance to be successful.

"I have no regrets or complaints," he said. "Buildings are buildings but good people are hard to find, and that's what you have here-a lot of good people."

A replacement for Kafer is expected to be announced as early as next week.

Another solid season for ACHS soccer

BY JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

The Antioch varsity soccer season might have culminated a few week's ago with a 1-0 loss to Cary-Grove in the regional title game, but it was another solid campaign with many outstanding performances for head coach Charlie Trout's Lady Sequoits.

"That's pretty normal," said Trout of his teams 13-8-3 record. "Our record doesn't really illustrate though how well we played. We lost five games 1-0."

Trout, who will coach the boys team this fall for the last time, had his best year in 1992 when his girl's team went 19-4, the year Trout started coaching at Antioch.

Many standout seniors will or have, we should say, already departed.

Senior midfielders Amie Carlberg and Jamie Wismer were named to the North Suburban all-conference and IHSSCA all-sectional teams. Carlberg was also voted team captain and MVP, scoring 11 goals and dishing out 12 assists. Wismer scored four goals and tied a school record by dishing out 15 assists for the season.

Another senior departed is forward Mandi Fasano, who was also named to the aforementioned teams following her 12 goals and nine assists.

"That's a nice award for Wismer, Carlberg, and Fasano" said Trout. "There's about 25 schools involved in that process, so to have three make was great."

Senior forward Sarah Richardson was named to the all-conference team, tallying 15 goals and 14 assists on the year and Jodie Schultz is also another senior who will be missed, having provided tremendous leadership to go along with her valuable play on the field.

Trout will look forward to the services of Emily Niles, who will be a junior and looked upon for her offensive contributions as we head into the y2k season. Niles was also named to the all-conference team after scoring eight goals and assisting on seven others.

"Those five players were tremendous and our nucleus," said Trout. "It's a pretty potent offense when you have five players scoring over 20 points for a season."

Trout's team will score a lot next year but all eyes will be on a defense that surrendered only 22 goals in 23 games, which comes out to a 0.9 goals per game against average and had a lot to do with keeper Erin Hall, who returns for her junior season.

"Our defense wasn't bad either," said Trout, chuckling.

Speaking of which, Antioch will benefit from the services of returning senior defenders Kristen Gamlin, Jourdan Phillips, Christy Plotz, and Lauren Beatty, and of course, Hall in goal.

"You never know," said Trout. "Emily will probably score a lot but there are others, offensively and defensively, who will move right in and make significant contributions."

Incidently, Wismer, Carlberg, Richardson, and Fasano all finished their careers ranking in the top 10 scorers in ACHS history, with Niles looking like she's well on her way. Wismer finished the highest (second) with 34 goals and 28 assists in her career. Carrie Delany, who heads the list with 60 goals, is a 1992 graduate who went on to play four years at The University of Denver.

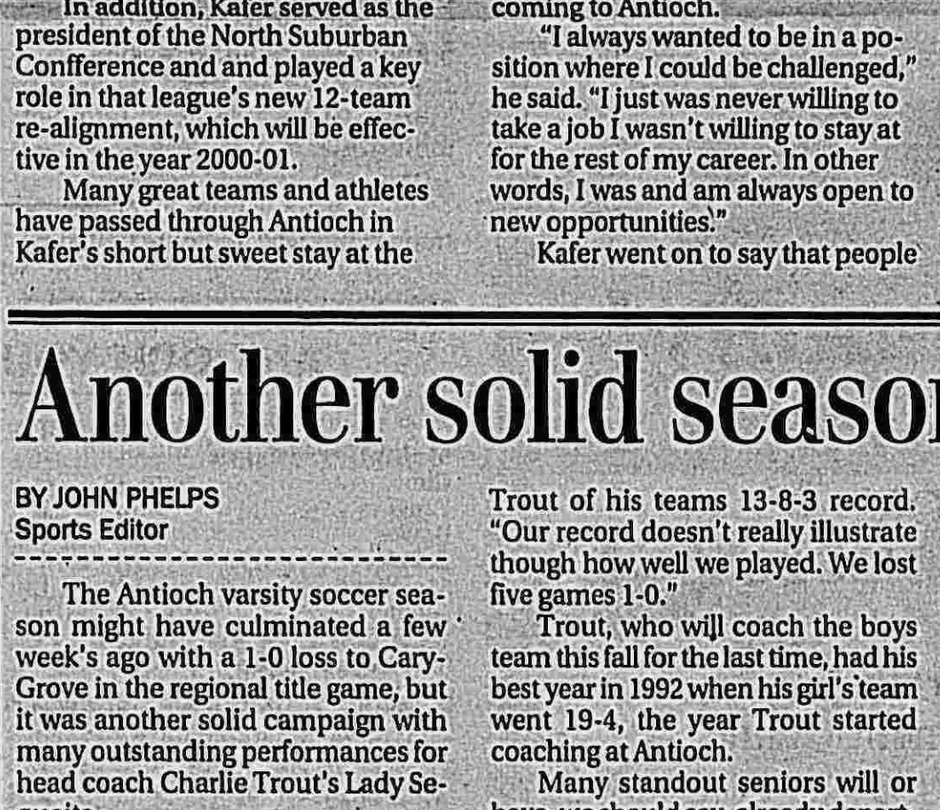

Trout said the hilight of the season was winning the Lake Zurich Invitational.

"We played well and were in every game," he noted.

In the regional title game loss to Cary, Antioch outshot the Trojans 14-7.

"They scored with about 20 minutes left in the game and we just couldn't get one in the back," said Trout. "We had our chances."

Hall recorded five saves in the losing effort.

Blaze win 5th in a row

The Lindenhurst Boys U-9 Travel team won their fifth game in a row with a victory over the Hinsdale Stingers and moved into a three way tie for first place with a 6-1 record. The game was played in 95+ degree weather and the Blaze with a deep bench easily outplayed and out-hustled the short-manned Stingers who arrived with only seven players.

The Blaze scored one minute into the game when Kyle Sytsma put in a half-volley on a corner kick by Colin O'Malley. Three minutes later, Kurt Houghton scored his 14th goal of the season when he threaded through the Hinsdale defense for an unassisted goal. The Stingers cut this lead in half with a goal of their own on a defensive lapse half-way through the period. Then with two minutes left in the quarter, stopped Ethan Hahn got in the action when he sent a booming shot over the Stinger's goalie from outside the penalty box. The second quarter saw the Stingers pull their defense way up to cause an offside trap but this didn't work as Tommy Sewart scored on a breakaway on a clearing pass by Sytsma. Brian Hook finished off the scoring when he scored on a penalty shot shortly before the half to give the Blaze a 6-1 half-time lead.

The third quarter saw the Blaze dominate which resulted in a O'Malley to Connor O'Keefe goal. Brian Mooney saw his first duty as a goalkeeper and shut out the opposition for the quarter. The fourth quarter was much the same as the Blaze peppered the opposition with seven more shots to give them 28 for the game to the opponent's only five. Houghton and O'Malley finished off the scoring for the Blaze with two unassisted goals to make the final score 8-1.

The defensive play of Andrew Stein, Matt Laine, and Alex Kelley kept the Stingers off balance all day and the goal-tending of Mooney, Chris Church, and Tommy Sewart kept the opponents from any scoring threats.

Lindenhurst Typhoon claims tourney title

The Lindenhurst Typhoon claimed the title in the U-11 Boys Premier division of the Libertyville Invitational Soccer Tournament over the Memorial Day weekend.

In round robin play, the Typhoon defeated the Lake Forest Power 3-0, the West Des Moines Celtic 1-0, and tied the Rockford Predators, 1-1. Over the three games, Alex McKenzie (2), Darren Nordstrom, Jason Moxley and Aidan Moran scored the Typhoon goals with assists going to Ian Hunter and Alex Mayer. Other standouts included Ryan Knupp, Danny Braun, Ryan O'Malley and Patrick McLane.

The Typhoon finished first in their group and prepared to play the Libertyville Lynx in the semi-finals. In this rematch from last year, the Typhoon came out and played some of their best soccer. In particular, the defense really cranked it up—fullbacks Alan Kroeger, Joe Barlow, Luke Holm, Brett Carlson, sweeper Eric Voight and goalie Kyle Kozuch were second to none. The Typhoon's aggressiveness on the ball was everything in this game and every player showed it. Most notable was Typhoon center forward Zach Barrett, who was relentless in his attack and created multiple opportunities, eventually leading to a scoring shot from midfielder Jason Moxley, who was assisted from left forward Alex Mayer. The score ended 1-0.

The championship game was extremely physical and punctuated by numerous penalties, as the Typhoon faced the West Des Moines Celtic again.

The Typhoon got on the board midway through the first half when Alex McKenzie lofted a shot over the Celtic goalie. On a rather dubious call, the Celtics were awarded an penalty kick and successfully brought the score to a 1-1 tie. With the wind at their backs in the second half the Typhoon pressed the attack at all levels. Zach Barrett took the ball deep into the Celtic goal area and played a beautiful cross that the Celtic goalie could only punched away. Typhoon midfielder Ian Hunter anticipated well and shot the rebound past the helpless Celtic goalie to give the Typhoon the lead for good. The Typhoon defense stepped up again and held the Celtic attack back and with the final whistle the championship and eluded them last year became a Typhoon reality.

THE WILLIAM E. BROOK WINTER RECREATION PROJECT A PART OF THE

William E. Brook Memorial Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center

In April of 1996 the Village of Antioch announced plans for a special project located east of Skidmore Drive. The purpose of the project is to enhance 3.25 acres of wetland on a 6-acre site along Sequoit Creek to promote increased wildlife habitat and provide educational benefits for the residents, tourists and students. This project includes the creation of two ponds, planting of wetland vegetation, creation of a commemorative brick path entrance including berms, plant-ing trees and wild flowers, construction of walking paths and board walks through the wetlands, educational standards, nesting areas for water fowl and a building to be used as an educational and entertainment center.

This special project has since grown into the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center. The purpose of the memorial is to honor the life and the legacy of our remarkable citizen, William E. Brook. His love of, and respect for nature continue to inspire us.

The goal is to accomplish this entire project through private donations, in-kind donations, volunteer help and grants. The sale of commemorative bricks for the entrance will help raise money for the overall project. Your brick(s) can become a permanent part of this spectacular project.

Wide track Grand Prix delivers more power for 1999

Pontiac's wide track Grand Prix, already one of the most powerful cars in the segment, has even more muscle for 1999.

New low-restriction air induction components raise the output in the normally aspirated 3.8-liter V6 engine from 195 to 200 horsepower.

Grand Prix's 1999 lineup includes the SE sedan, GT coupe and sedan and GTP coupe and sedan. GTP models are equipped with a standard 240 horsepower supercharged 3800 V6 engine.

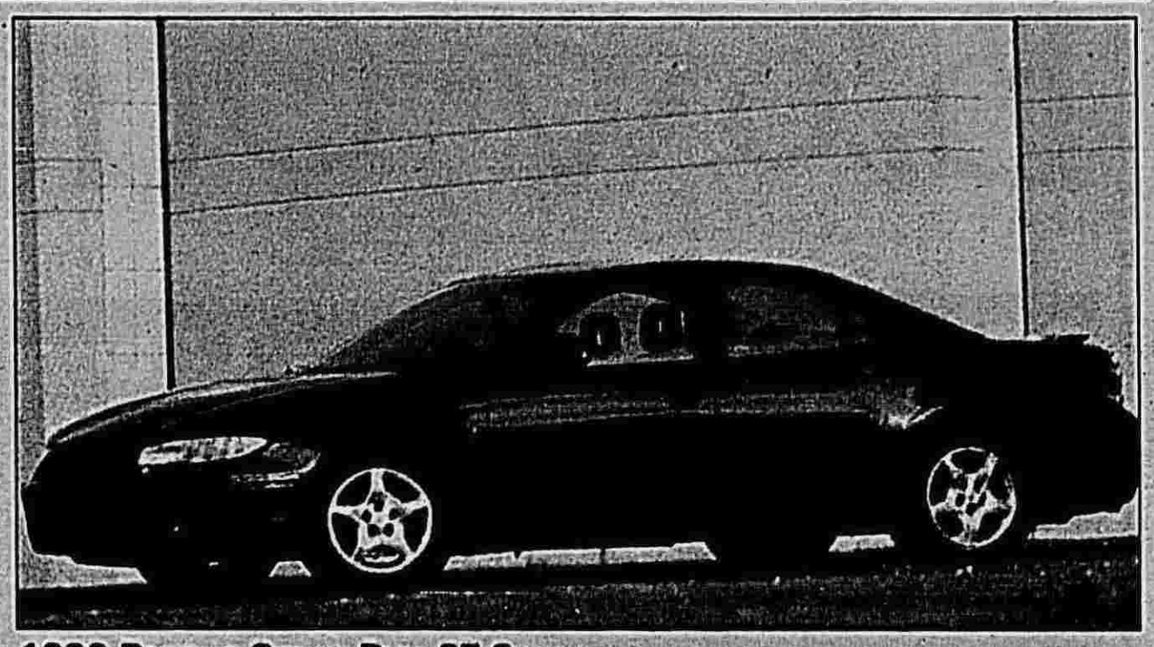

Full feature traction control uses a combination of spark timing, fuel cutoff, transmission upshift and brake intervention to limit power output when sensors detect wheel spin. Pontiac's Enhanced Traction System (ETS), which is standard for the 1999 Grand Prix line, functions in a similar manner but does not include brake intervention.

Grand Prix's Enhanced Traction System (ETS) engages automatically when wheel spin is detected in either forward or reverse. ETS employs spark timing and fuel cutoff along with transmission upshifts to limit wheel spin for better traction on slippery surfaces. ETS can be turned off but always engages when the engine is started.

On 1999 Grand Prix GTP models, the traction control indicator and on/off button are located in the trip computer. On other models, the traction control indicator appears in the Driver Information Center.

"Grand Prix has to be bold and exciting because it appeals to the youngest, most educated buyers in the midsize segment," said Grand Prix Brand manager Bill Heugh. "These driving enthusiasts demand on eye-catching sporty car with spirited handling and performance and

Summer road travel: make life easier at rental car counter

The rental car industry's growth is on the rise at the rate of about 8-10 percent per year. That's because more people are renting cars, and for a variety of reasons. It used to be that airports were the place for a rental car company to be, and that businessmen were the primary customers. Not so anymore, with many families renting cars for a variety of reasons, from using a van to haul the gang to soccer games, to renting a four wheel drive vehicle for a vacation in the mountains.

Summer is the most popular season to rent a vehicle for a family road trip. "Because this is the busiest time of year for us," says Tom McDonnell, owner and CEO of U-Save Auto Rental, "we recommend trying to plan as far ahead as you can. There are ways to make this procedure quick, with no disappointments and problems while you're on the road." Over 400 owners of U-Save Auto Rentals around the world have compiled some tips for those renting vehicles. Their collective comment? "This should be a fun experience with hassle-free procedures."

To make sure it is, before renting a vehicle, consumers need to do some homework to have all their questions answered about driver responsibility, fees, and insurance. Here are some tips from the professionals at U-Save Auto Rental.

1) In choosing your rental vehicle, are you thinking ahead of time? If size is a factor, consider how many people will be riding in the car or how much luggage or parcel space you will need. Keep in mind, a four door car may cost more than a two door, so ask in advance. If special features are important, such as power steering, air conditioning, stereo/cassette player, or sunroof, be sure to ask for a vehicle that includes them, and if there is any additional cost for these features.

2) Pick Up & Delivery? Ask your rental company whether or not employees pick up the vehicle and return it to the rental agency for you, or if that is your responsibility. If that is in fact the rental agency's responsibility, ask if there is an extra charge for that service. Most companies offer the service free of charge, but some will charge more for further traveling to pick up the vehicle.

3) Additional drivers? If someone other than yourself or your spouse is driving the vehicle, always ask if there is an additional driver fee. Be advised that you, as the renter, are responsible for the safe return of the rental car in the same condition as received, except for normal wear and tear. As the renter, you are held responsible for damages which occur while the vehicle is in the custody of an unauthorized driver.

4) Is unlimited mileage always your best deal? These rates tend to be higher and the geographical area in which the vehicle may be driven is still restricted. In order to choose the rate plan which represents your best value, it is helpful to know in advance how many miles you will be driving.

5) Weekend Rates or Not? Also when bargain-hunting, keep in mind that weekly and weekend rates can save you considerable money versus daily prices on a per-day basis.

6) Hidden charges? When renting a vehicle for insurance replacement purposes, be advised that insurance companies normally reimburse the renter by the calendar day. That is, you are expected to pay a full day's rate for any portion of the calendar day. For example, a car rented on a Tuesday at noon, and returned on Wednesday at noon, would be considered a two day rental by the insurance company.

7) Does your personal insurance cover your rental car? Before renting, contact your insurance company to see if your personal auto insurance covers you for the rental. When renting specialty vehicles like passenger vans, minivans, etc., it is wise to purchase the optional Collision Damage Waiver (which protects the renter from the cost of any damage repairs to the rental vehicle in the event of an accident).

Mitsubishi Galant GTZ is well designed

When your marketplace competition consists of America's most popular cars, you'd better offer something good. That's exactly what Mitsubishi does with its new for '99 Galant, a totally competent vehicle that epitomizes conservative family sedans. In its GTZ "sport" variant, reviewed, it becomes a true "gentlemen's express!"

Size-wise, the new Galant is considerably roomier than the previous generation, offering ample room up front on well-padded twin cloth buckets. Dual second generation airbags provide added safety, and the GTZ model has side air bags as standard equipment. Air conditioning, electric windows, and locks with keyless entry, rack and pinion power steering, and an AM/FM cassette radio will please for the GTZ's base price of $25,500.

Aesthetically the front-drive Galant's interior is drab; the number of analog gauges and power take-offs is ample. A poorly designed cupholder and center console are standard. As this was the premium GTZ model, 4-wheel disc antilock brakes provided ample stopping power. The rear seat provides lots of legroom, and the huge trunk contained today's trendy "cargo net."

In the family sedan class, ride is especially important, and even the sport-suspension equipped GTZ Galant doesn't disappoint here. Its fully independent McPherson Strut front suspension delivers both comfort and compliance without succumbing to overt softness. It complements the revised multilink rear and stabilizer bar. Large bumps and dips are absorbed well, yet sharp handling isn't compromised. The body is extremely rigid, another contemporary feature, but the U-turn diameter is large at near 40 feet. A disappointment on this sport model are the tires, which are barely-adequate all-season radials.

Overall, the Galant GTZ is well designed and pleasant enough but breaks no new ground. It's a fine alternative to the market leaders!

GRAND PRIX: Car offers more power

we give it to them."

Grand Prix's distinctive styling incorporates an aggressive Wide Track stance and racy low profile roof line used by both coupes and sedans. This sleek exterior design imparts a sporty coupe look to SE, GT and GTP sedans and provides a stable, road-hugging feel, enhancing Grand Prix's outstanding handling characteristics.

The muscular lines of the 1999 Grand Prix front end include body-colored fascias, reflector optic headlamps with integrated directional signals and side markers. Body-colored front fascias on all 1999 Grand Prix models feature round fog lamps while GT models have a graphite colored lower valance that enhances the car's low, sporty look. The GT fascia features Pontiac's famous split grille in the upper fascia while the SE sedan sports a split grille in the middle of the fascia.

The rear of the 1999 Grand Prix is distincitvely Pontiac with unique taillamps that integrate backup lights, brake lights and rear side markers. The decklid features a low lift-over and is accented by a sporty rear fascia with debossed Ponitac badging.

Grand Prix customers will find two new exterior colors on the 1999 color chart — Dark Bronzemist Metallic and Medium Gulf Blue Metallic.

American dream

Through the 'theology of the hammer,' Habitat for Humanity has been building homes in Lake County for 10 years

By KELLY C. DUCKWORTH
Staff Intern

Some of us come home to the luxuries of a spacious home or apartment where we can escape after a long day to the privacy of our own bedrooms. For others, it is not unusual to come home after a long tiresome day to a home where floors are rotting away, walls are deteriorating or a household of 16 family members—more or less—where the idea of privacy and space is just a dream.

For Tollse Alexander, 27 a single mother of two boys with a baby on the way, peace and quiet in her own home is what she has dreamt of. Now that dream is coming true.

Each day Alexander comes home from her job at NorthShore Sanitation District in Highland Park, to a two-bedroom house that she shares with 16 other family members in North Chicago.

The dream of having her own home is a dream no longer. Soon Alexander and her children will be living in a three-bedroom, one-bathroom ranch house in Waukegan.

Alexander is one of a thousand applicants that has applied to Habitat for Humanity who has sought decent, affordable housing.

As explained in their brochures, Habitat for Humanity is an international, ecumenical, grass-roots Christian housing ministry that seeks to eliminate poverty housing by partnering with low income families to build affordable homes that are sold to families with profit or interest.

Habitat for Humanity was founded in Africa by Millard Fuller and his wife Linda who brought it to the United States in 1976.

In the early 1980's, the Fuller's began working with former U.S. President Jimmy Carter who has since been actively involved.

John Bueiller and Jerry Murray work together to build a home for Carolyn Bell.

While Lake County has many wealthy suburbs, substandard housing also exists.

In May of 1989 Habitat for Humanity Lake County was organized by people of Lake County who recognized a need for decent, affordable housing in Lake County. It is one of almost 1500 affiliates of Habitat for Humanity International.

Habitat for Humanity Lake County "started with nothing except a lot of good ideas and a lot of prayer," Julie Donovan, executive director and co-founder of Habitat for Humanity Lake County, said.

Habitat for Humanity Lake County seeks to "give witness to God's command to love one another by working in partnership with all of God's people to provide decent, affordable housing for those in need."

They also aim to break down the walls that divide people and instead to build up a sense of community among people of diverse colors, religions and economic classes who live in Lake County and throughout the world.

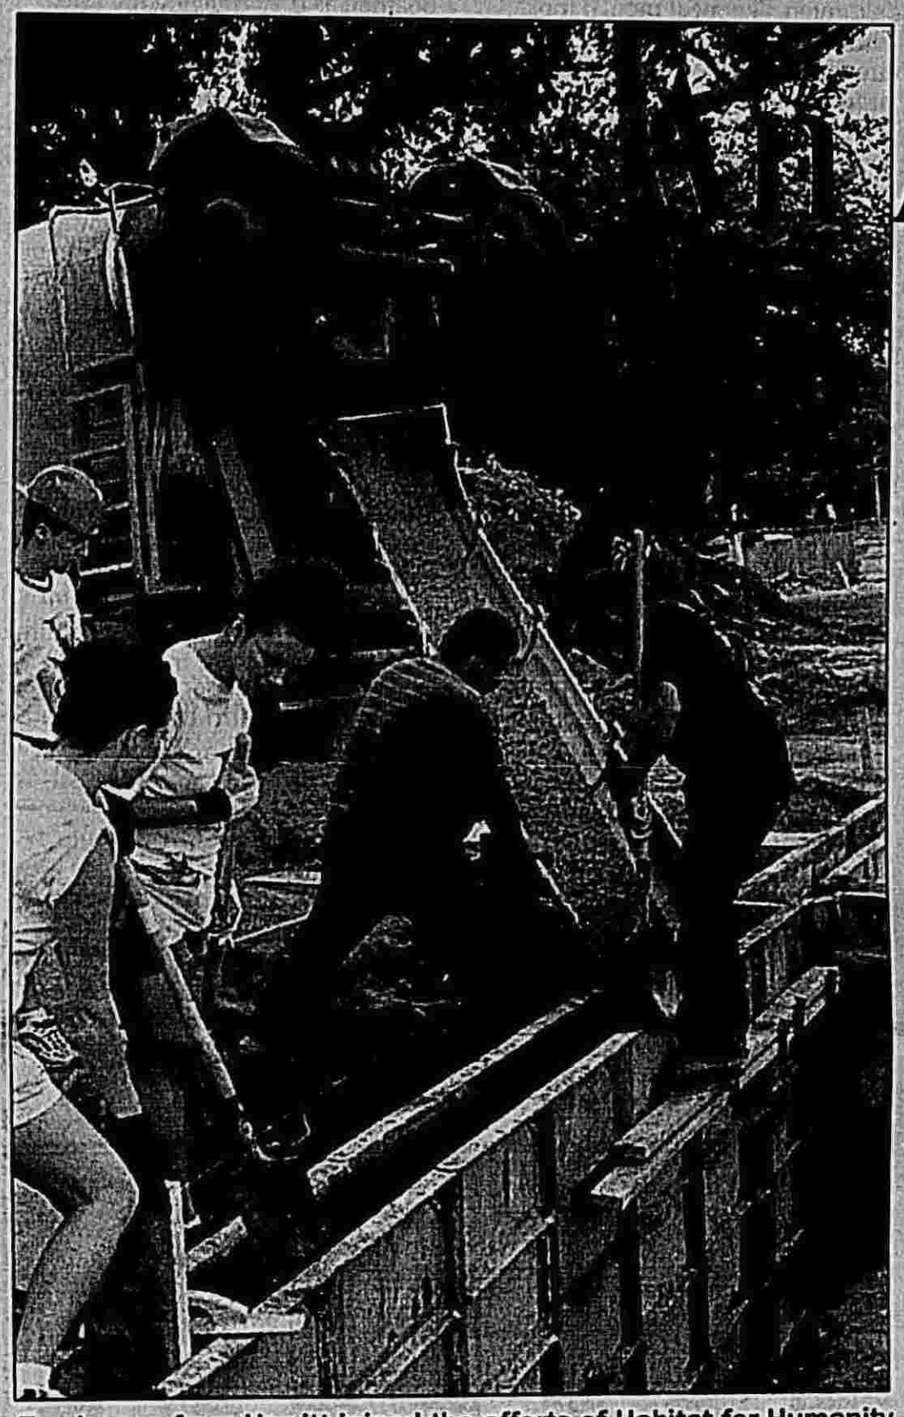

About 70,000 homes have been built throughout the United States since 1976. Habitat hopes to reach its goal of 100,000 by the coming year.

Habitat Lake County has built 36 houses for people in North Chicago, Zion, Waukegan and Round Lake Beach since 1989.

The homes aren't designer homes that are constructed by elite builders, but rather community-built dwellings that require the help of many loving, willing and hard-working hands.

More than 5000 individuals, 200 churches, 2000 businesses and many civic organizations make up Habitat Lake County. All of which volunteer their endless effort, time and donations to ensure that deserving families in need are provided with a home.

DREAM: Habitat builds community as well as homes

Habitat works by using volunteer labor and some donated materials to build modest homes.

The homes are sold to families selected on the basis of need, ability to pay and willingness to be a partner by building their homes and the homes of others.

"We are a Christian organization with Christian roots open to everyone." Donovan said, "We believe in the theology of the hammer. We might disagree when to go to church, but we can all agree on when to put a hammer to use."

The no-interest mortgage is held by Habitat. Monthly payments from existing homes are recycled into the Fund for Humanity, which is used to build more houses.

Corporate businesses, churches and civic groups can sponsor a house. Sponsoring means that they provide the material and the labor to build the house.

In 1991 Habitat Lake County sought sponsorship by Abbott Laboratories, whose employees already volunteered countless hours of service.

Abbott donated $30,000 the first year and since 1991 they have returned.

"Gradually other companies have said they want to give back to the community. We have companies coming from all parts of the country. It is a great team building opportunity." Donovan said.

The 600 block of McAlister in Waukegan currently has five lots already sponsored by various companies, from Hewitt to Coldwell Banker Real Estate to the Partners of Lake Forest and Lake Bluff, a community organization of volunteers.

"CEO's, managers, employees, Habitat families and community volunteers work right in their with each other. There is no status distinction. It's wonderful." Donovan said.

Habitat Lake County not only provides the services for decent, affordable housing but also classes on budgeting, home maintenance, and yard maintenance.

"These are things they've never had a chance to know because they per chance never have had a home," Donovan said.

Criteria for selecting a family include the need for a decent place to live, ability to pay and willingness to be a partner by building their own home with income levels between $20,000-$30,000.

The families are expected to pay a monthly payment on the house of approximately $400 including taxes and insurance.

Habitat does have the ability to foreclose and evict a family if they don't pay, but Donovan strongly noted, "We will do anything to help the family find a job or space out the payments. We will work with them as long as they work with us. It's a partnership."

The Habitat families, in order to accomplish their goal, must provide 500 hours of what is called "sweat equity." Families have to make a serious commitment to reach home ownership.

Step softly, and carry a big heart

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

As a child, I remember solemnly swearing that I would never, EVER get divorced.

Of course, I also swore that boys had cooties, and I wasn't right about that either. (At least not all of them.)

But seriously, the reason I uttered that statement years ago was because I was a child of divorce – more than once. My father gave up his parental rights to my brother and I, and we never saw him while we were growing up. I swore that I would not put my own children through that kind of pain. When I married, it would be forever.

And maybe it could have been, if I hadn't suffered from the usual teenage delusions of wisdom and maturity, which led to my not-too-bright decision to become a bride at the tender age of nineteen. Ten years later, I was the very happy mother of two wonderful sons, but a very unhappy wife. So, despite agonizing over the decision, by the age of 29 I was divorced.

After two years had passed, I began to despair of ever finding anyone capable of loving my children. Heck, it was hard even finding anyone capable of loving ME who had 1. A job; 2. No criminal record; 3. Mental stability, or 4. Less than 2 gold chains around his neck. But I had promised myself after the divorce (notice I didn't swear this time) that my children would never suffer due to my choice of a partner, and I was determined to keep that promise, even if it meant being alone until they grew up.

But then an "angel", cleverly disguised as a man named Brandy, walked into our lives. From our first chance meeting, I had a good feeling about him. Not only was there a strong attraction between us, but we quickly became friends, as well. After our first date, we talked on the phone nearly every night.

I knew instinctively by the end of the first week that he was my soulmate.

Luckily, the feeling was mutual (although, like most men, it took him much longer than a week to figure that out). As our relationship progressed, he was eager to meet the boys. Having only met one or two of the men I had dated before, neither of whom had much interest in kids, the boys were understandably leery. But Brandy loved children, and kids can't be fooled. The first time he came over to meet them, and every time afterward, Brandy brought ice cream bars, and spent more time playing and talking with them than with me.

It was a very good sign.

Of course, my boys were normal, mischievous children. They didn't want to make things too easy for him. For example, after we'd been dating for quite a while, Brandy offered to baby-sit while I went to a play rehearsal. While I was gone, my older son decided to have a little fun at Brandy's expense.

"You know," Will told him, "you'd better be nice to my Mom. She killed all her other boyfriends and put them in the attic."

Brandy just laughed.

On another occasion, Brandy came for dinner and I made beef burgundy, which uses wine in the recipe. Though I wasn't much of a drinker, I poured myself a glass of the burgundy wine to drink with my meal. Will looked at Brandy and, with a perfect poker face, said to him, "Yeah, my Mom drinks that all the time. She's an alcoholic."

Brandy knew better, of course, and passed all Will's devious little tests with flying colors. Most importantly, he was careful never to give the impression that he was trying to replace their father. When we finally announced our engagement, even my ex-husband was glad.

It seems my sons had already told him how wonderful they thought Brandy was.

On our wedding day, my boys, Sean and Will, looked adorably handsome in their tuxedos, and they beamed as they watched me walk down the aisle, while Brandy sang to me, "You Are So Beautiful". I was deliriously happy, and thought that nothing could top that moment.

But leave it to children to steal the show, in a most unexpected and beautiful way. During the reception, my son, Will, decided that he had something to say and wanted everyone to hear it. He approached the DJ, made his request, and the DJ handed him the microphone.

With all the confidence of an entertainer, Will took the microphone and spoke.

"Hi, everyone. I'm Will, I'm twelve years old, I'm a Gemini and I'm available," he quipped. Everyone burst out laughing.

"But seriously, folks" Will continued, "I just want to say that today I am the luckiest boy in the world. Not only do I have one father that I love...I now have TWO."

My husband burst into tears of joy and, as I looked around, I realized he wasn't alone.

There wasn't a dry eye in the room.

And eleven years, and two more children later, we still feel lucky! Happy Father's Day to loving Dads and Step dads everywhere!

Summer Solstice Sunfest at the Adler Planetarium

It is time to awaken from that winter hibernation and celebrate the arrival of warm days and starry nights at the Adler Planetarium and Astronomy Museum's "Summer Solstice Sunfest," June 19.

What really causes the summer solstice, also called "Midsummer," is the movement of Earth in an orbit that is tilted toward the direction of the equator. The 23.5 degree tilt results in changing solar illumination exposing the northern hemisphere to more light.

Seasons are distinguished by the position of the sun as it travels north and south throughout the year. Summer is celebrated when the sun reaches its most northerly position. Summer and Winter solstices signal the longest and shortest days of daylight while equinoxes in the Spring and Fall designate days of equal light and darkness.

The Adler Planetarium and Astronomy Museum remains dedicated to its mission to be the leading center for interpreting the exploration of the Universe. The museum is located at 1300 S. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

For more information please call 312-922-STAR or www.adlerplanetarium.org.

Dig for adventure in 'Dinosaur Expedition'

On Wednesday, June 23, Chicago Children's Museum will open "Dinosaur Expedition," a new permanent exhibit based on a real-life dinosaur hunt in the Sahara.

Dinosaur Expedition re-creates the 1997 Expedition to Niger, West Africa, and the discovery site of the fish-eating dinosaur Suchomimus. Created in collaboration with world-renowned University of Chicago paleontologist Paul Sereno and educator Gabrielle Lyon, the exhibit is an immersion experience into the world of a real-life dinosaur expedition and features an authentic dig site.

The highlight of Dinosaur Expedition is the large excavation pit. More than a giant sand box, the excavation pit was designed to be a safe and educational place for children of all ages to explore what the world was like 100 million years ago. Visitors can use tools to find the Suchomimus bones—waiting underneath sediment to be uncovered, identified and mapped.

Members of Chicago Children's Museum and the general public are invited to a special "Dig with the Experts" preview reception on Tuesday, June 22 from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. The reception features a question-and-answer session with Dr. Sereno, Gabrielle Lyon, and members of the 1997 Saharan Expedition. To RSVP, please call the Museum hotline at (312)464-7747. Admission is free for members, and the regular price of $6.50 for non-members.

The Grand Opening of Dinosaur Expedition will take place on Wednesday, June 23 from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Dr. Sereno and Gabrielle Lyon will give a short presentation and open up the dig site for kids to explore. June 23 kicks off a summer of special interactive programming to engage visitors in hands-on dinosaur exploration.

Lightning strikes twice with shagadelic sequel

movie review

Angela D. Sykora

Despite its shagalicious title, there isn't a whole lot of shagging going on in Mike Meyer's Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me.

In this latest installment of the British spy spoof, our favorite "randy-man" isn't so randy since Dr. Evil stole his mojo. For the unhip, mojo is essential for keeping all your naughty bits working properly. "Yeah baby! Does that make you horny? Does it?"

In the original International Man of Mystery, Austin Powers was frozen in 1967 and thawed in 1997 to stop Dr. Evil from taking over the world. Two years later, he's still up to no good, and wants Austin to pay for thwarting his attempts at world domination.

He figures the best revenge is to get Austin where it hurts—the bedroom. Take away his shagability and he's nothing right? Just another Brit with bad teeth and an even uglier wardrobe.

The sequel introduces a few new characters including Fat Bastard. He's a metric ton of Scottish fun, just bursting out of his kilt. Fat Bastard's screen presence will make you squirm in your stadium seats. You'll laugh, you'll cringe, you'll want to spew! Sorry, wrong movie. His rendition of the Chili's "I want my babyback ribs" song will turn you into a vegetarian.

Through his invention of a time travel machine, Dr. Evil sends Fat Bastard back in time to extract the mojo out of the frozen Austin Powers of the sixties, hoping without his trademark sexual prowess, he'll never be able to stop his evil endeavors in the future.

Seth Green of "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," is back as Dr. Evil's uncooperative son Scott, who'd rather mock his father's lame attempts at being a villain than participate in the family business.

Not to be discouraged, Dr. Evil creates a miniature version of himself who will partake in his master plan. After much office debate, it has been proven that "mini-me" is played by actor Verne J. Troyer and not Mike Meyers. For all his comic genius, even he couldn't pull that one off.

In an unexpected yet fitting cameo, Jerry Springer spoofs his own talk show by playing host to a segment called, "My father is evil and wants to take over the world."

Mike Meyers and Heather Graham star in the shagadelic sequel, "Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me."

There is no shortage of cleverness in the mind of Mike Meyers.

And what's a good spy flick without a babe? Elizabeth Hurley makes a small appearance in the beginning of the film as Austin's original love interest Vanessa Kensington, but the real vixen this time around is Heather Graham of Boogie Nights, who plays American secret agent Felicity Shagwell.

She's crazy for Austin and all things Brit. In fact, he's her inspiration for becoming a spy. Hard to believe, but from the moment she laid her baby blues on his hairy chest she wanted nothing more than to demonstrate to Austin how "well" she could "shag." Unlucky for Austin, he just can't muster the mojo to uh, perform.

Lucky for Graham, her ho-hum acting abilities aren't really in question here, because she's just eye candy. And what an eyeful she is. Even in total darkness I could see the pearly whites of every male in the theater because they were smiling so widely everytime she go-goed through a scene.

Some moviegoers who'd seen and loved the original might be disappointed in the fact that the plot of Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me, centers more around Dr. Evil than the shagadelic spy himself.

I see the point though. You can only recycle the kitschy catch phrases so many times before it gets old. Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery was our introduction to a campy character who could rely on exaggerated sixties slang to make us laugh, but for lightening to strike twice, the sequel had to give us more than "yeah baby, yeah!"

Still, I can't get enough of Austin and those cheesy one-liners. I'll probably end up renting the original to get my fix, which is what I recommend for all Austin Powers fans who may feel a bit cheated.

"Oh behave!" The sequel, Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me is just as funny as the first, only this time around it's Dr. Evil who's delivering the punches.

Even my mother, who never saw International Man of Mystery, and only went with me to get out of the house, was highly amused, although understandably grossed-out by Fat Bastard and the subsequent fart jokes.

We give Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me three and a half popcorn boxes out of five. "Groovy baby!"

Park your cart and save your heart: American Heart Association lists ways to fit fitness into busy lifestyles

Now that summer is here and golfers are hitting the links, the American Heart Association wants to send an important message: park your cart and save your heart.

Physical inactivity kills more than 250,000 Americans each year and dramatically increases an individual's risk for heart disease, stroke, several forms of cancer, diabetes, obesity, osteoporosis, depression and stress (to nae a few). With so many reasons to be active, why do so may adults - 66.5 percent in Illinois - continue to lead inactive lifestyles?

"Many people claim that they do not have time to exercise," Edward Winslow, M.D., chairman of the Illinois Coalition for Promoting Physical Activity and American Heart Association volunteer. "But there are many simple ways to incorporate physical activity into your everyday life.

"The golf course is a great place to begin. Walking the course - instead of driving a cart - gives golfers an excellent cardiovascular workout and helps to alleviate stress in your life and in your game," Winslow adds.

Incorporating physical activity into things you already enjoy can make the transition to a healthy lifestyle easier. Parking your golf cart, walking to and from a movie theatre or walking laps around the athletic field while your child is at sports practice are simple, inexpensive ways to be fit.

"Begin by evaluating your daily routine," Winslow suggests. "Where can you add ten minutes of physical activity? Who can you recruit to help keep you on track? You'll find it easier to reach your goals if you remind yourself that regular exercise will increase your energy level, raise your metabolism and help you look and feel better."

The American Heart Association recommends fitting in 30 minutes of physical activity each day or, at the very least, three times a week to stay healthy. Individuals who are really pressed for time can break the physical activity down into three ten-minute intervals.

The American Heart Association spent more than $312 million during fiscal year 1997-1998 for research support, public and professional education, and community programs. With more than 4 million volunteers, the AHA is the largest voluntary health organization fighting cardiovascular diseases and stroke, which annually kill more than 960,000 Americans.

Skeptical about how much impact washing your car, taking the stairs or walking the dog can have on your physique? This chart, from: 'Fitting In Fitness', shows how many pounds can be lost in one year by adding small amounts of physical activity into your day.

ENCOREplus Breast Cancer Program at YWCA of Lake County receives Avon Grant for 4th year

Local organization receives support from national program

The Avon Breast Health Access Fund awarded a $53,100.59 grant to the ENCOREplus breast cancer program at the YWCA of Lake County to increase awareness of the lifesaving benefits of early detection. It is the fourth year that the program has received a grant for its work on this important health issue.

The ENCOREplus program at the YWCA of Lake County will work to refer lake County area women to low-cost or free health services, such as mammograms and clinical breast exams, in their own communities.

Since July of 1995, the ENCOREplus program has educated almost 13,000 women about the importance of early detection of breast cancer and has referred almost 850 women for mammograms and clinical breast exams.

Breast cancer is a threat to every woman. It is the second leading cause of cancer death for women and the leading cause of death in women between the ages of 40 and 55. Thirty to forty percent of these deaths could be prevented if women practiced the three steps recommended for early detection: annual mammograms, beginning at age 40; annual clinical breast exams; and monthly breast self-examinations. Unfortunately, according to the American Cancer Society, less than half of women comply.

"Many factors, from fear to lack of a doctor's recommendation, keep women from practicing good breast health," says Lisa Vesterfelt Director of the ENCOREplus Program. "There is a tremendous need to reach women with information and resources, adds Vesterfelt. "We are grateful that Avon recognizes this and has chose to support our program."

In fact, Avon has funded more than 500 community-based programs across the United States during the last six years, including the ENCOREplus program at the YWCA of Lake County. These programs are dedicated to educating women about breast cancer and to putting them in touch with early detection screening services.

The Avon Breast Health Access Fund is made possible by Avon's Breast Cancer Awareness Crusade, a national women's health initiative launched in October 1993. Avon's Crusade raises funds through the sale of special pink ribbon products by Avon's independent Sales Representatives, and through a series of unique outdoor fundraising events called AVON's Breast Cancer 3-Day, which will take place this year in Chicago, New York, Atlanta and Los Angeles. More than $37 million has been raised and distributed to breast cancer education and early detection programs nationwide by Avon's Crusade. What's more, Avon Sales Representatives have distributed over 80 million educational brochures in women-to-women outreach efforst, and many are serving as volunteers for programs funded by the Crusade.

The Avon Breast Health Access Fund is administered by the National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations (NABCO). Grants are awarded twice a year to support community-based programs across the country. The Fund's advisory board panel selected the ENCOREplus program at the YWCA of Lake County as one of 69 grant recipients nationwide in the eleventh cycle of Avon grants. These organization were chosen based on their ability to reach women effectively, particularly minority, low-income and older women, who are often medically underserved.

For more information on the ENCOREplus program at the YWCA of Lake County, call Lisa Vesterfelt at 662-4247. For the name of the nearest Avon Sales Representative, call 1-800-FOR-AVON. Representatives have pink ribbon fund-raising products available and can provide more information about Avon's Crusade. Innocent game or murder simulators?

Hi Dr. Singer,

I enjoy your column very much and saw a show recently on T.V. that I thought you might find interesting. I'm hoping you will comment on it. I don't remember which show it was, but they were talking about these newer video games that kids are playing. These are the ones, in which, kids shoot at people and they are very realistic. In the show, they referenced them as "murder simulators" and "murder training." I don't know how many of these games you have seen, or if you caught the show, but I wondered what you thought about those games? F.K.

PARENT'S PLACE

Sherri Singer, Psy.D.

Hi F.K.,

Thank you for enjoying my column! I enjoy having you as a reader! I think I did catch the same show. I heard them refer to these newer games by the terms you mentioned. They also had something else on there that really interested me. They interviewed a military man about these types of games and I heard him claim that the military actually trains their men to be combat-ready by using similar types of simulators to make the killing response faster. He seemed to indicate that the military and war really has no room for the natural human response of waiting or compassion. In a combat situation, I can fully understand the need for that since it is kill or be killed. As unpleasant as that really is, it is a fact!

Now, to be very clear, I doubt highly that the military would be using popular games as combat training tools and do not want to be quoted as saying anything close to that. I do however, have some familiarity with some of the new games and do feel that they can be quite detrimental. I am not aware of any research information done specifically on the new games, but I will speak to what my subjective opinion is to these things, in response to your question.

Of course, I will not be speaking about any one game in particular and certainly will not be naming any games. If any readers are concerned about the games that their children are playing, than I highly recommend that those parents take some time to review the specific games and decide whether they are o.k. with their child viewing that material.

There are some games out there that I have viewed that I cannot stand to view at all. They are extremely violent, graphic and extremely realistic. I have a hard time viewing killing and have an even harder time being in the driver's seat, so to speak.

I think the tough things about these games are that the player is in the position of the killer, the blood and carnage are very realistic and the process is very repetitive. I know from the work that I do with people every day, that if you want something to be perfect, permanent and part of you, you need to repeat it over and over again. This is another reason that these games scare me. They are played repetitively. Usually to the point of looking addictive. I think there is a certain sense of desensitization and numbing that occurs to suffering and violence. I have been asked before whether I feel that movies or games are more detrimental. I think that either media done irresponsibly can be equally as problematic, however, the thing that disturbs me about the games is the fact that the person playing is the person killing. I keep hearing what that military man said! The military simulators take out the human response of waiting and compassion.

What to do about this? I have never been nor will I ever be a proponent of censorship. I believe in my heart that the real answer to all of this is parental involvement. Parents need to be very involved with what their kids are doing. They also need to know that it is o.k. and necessary to say, "no" to their child about many things. It's also o.k. to not be popular with your child for your choices. I would say that the amount of parents that I meet out there that don't feel o.k. with saying, "no," is a far more dangerous statistic than any game or movie or music. Be involved all the time. Your child will be able to handle your limitations and will find other more acceptable things to enjoy!

Cosmetic surgery gaining in popularity

More Americans are opting for cosmetic surgery to improve appearances, enhance self esteem and look younger.

A recent survey conducted by the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons (ASPRS) shows a dramatic increase in the number of cosmetic surgery procedures being performed. According to the survey, cosmetic surgery procedures increased 50% over the last three years totaling 1,045,815. Since 1992, the number of cosmetic surgery procedures has risen 153%.

The survey reports that liposuction is the most popular procedure, up 57% since 1996. Breast augmentation comes in second with a 51% increase over the same period.

Liposuction and breast augmentation is followed in popularity by eyelid surgery at 120,000 procedures, face lifts at 70,947 and chemical peels with 66,002 procedures being performed.

According to industry experts, factors that are contributing to the increased popularity in cosmetic surgery include a strong economy, an aging population and a greater acceptance of cosmetic surgery by society.

Doctor Leon Tcheupdjian-Forrester, a cosmetic surgeon and founder of the Liposuction and Cosmetic Surgery institute, headquartered in Arlington Heights says that the figures published in the study reflect the growth experienced in his practice and cites the healthy economy as one reason for the increase.

Society no longer views cosmetic surgery as narcissistic. "There is evidence that cosmetic surgery existed in advanced societies throughout the history of the world." Forrester said.

Council examines the lastest in asthma hospitalizations

The Illinois Health Care Cost Containment Council unveiled today its latest edition of the 'Health Cost Update' newsletter, which explores the rising number of asthma hospital cases in Illinois that climbed by 2.2 percent in 1997.

Most of these cases are made up by females of all ages, which accounted for nearly 57 percent of Illinois' total 25,347 asthma hospitalizations. However, the number of cases reported for males showed an increase of 5.9 percent, while the number of the female hospitalizations declined slightly in 1997.

The 'Health Cost Update' newsletter also found infants and adolescents, who represent approximately one-fourth of the state's 12 million population, accounted for 10,972 asthma hospitalizations or 43 percent of the total. They also account for one-third of the $183.9 million in total charges incurred in Illinois hospitals and for 34 percent of the total hospital patient days (80,615 days) for asthma treatment. Medicaid was the largest single payer among children ($28.4 million) and all asthma hospital charges ($59.4 million).

"Our study, contained in the current edition of the newsletter, was quite revealing to the extent that asthma has on our population. We not only looked at statewide statistics but broke this down by region for age and gender," Executive Director Joseph A. Bonefeste said.

In Illinois, a typical asthma patient could expect an average charge of $7,255 in 1997, a 1 percent decline from the prior year. The 3.1-day average length of stay in a hospital also represented an 8.8 percent decline from 1996. Total patient days (80,615) decreased by 4.6 percent. The total charges in 1997 were $183.9 million, a 1.2 percent increase from 1996.

Chicago hospitals had the most discharges (11,465) total charges ($98.6 million) and patient days (38,838 days) last year. Hospitals in Henry, Mercer and Rock Island counties (Health Service Area 10) had the lowest asthma discharges (339), total charges ($1.46 million) and total patient days (961 days).

Asthma is a chronic respiratory disease the severity of which ranges from mild to life-threatening. The Center for Disease Control reported a 61 percent increase in asthma rate between 1982 and 1994. According to the American Lung Association, more than 5,000 out of an estimated 14.6 million Americans with asthma die from this ailment annually, a 45.3 percent increase in mortality between 1985 and 1995.

Asthma is also one of the more common ailments to inflict children. About 33 percent of asthma patients nationwide are ages 0-18.

Since its creation in 1984, the Council has provided consumers with a variety of information on various hospital discharges, charges and lengths of stay. By law, its data come from inpatient records regularly reported by hospitals to the agency.

To obtain a copy of the 'Health Cost Update" newsletter, individuals can contact the Council's two offices — 160 N. LaSalle Street, Suite S-200, Chicago 60601, 312-793-1440 or 4500 South Sixth Street Rd., Suite 194, Springfield 62703, 217-786-7001. The agency can also be reached through its World Web Page (http://www.state.il.us/agency/hcccc).

Dermatologists clear up summer sun myths for acne sufferers

Clear complexions achieved during the summer may mislead many of the United States' 37 million acne sufferers in to believing their problems are behind them. But, that's not the case, note dermatologists. "When exposed to sunlight, skin tends to swell, and oiliness and redness is reduced, leaving many acne-prone individuals with a temporary appearance of clear skin," explains Katie Rodan, M.D., Assistant Clinical Professor of Dermatology at Stanford University. "As the summer progresses, and people are exposed more to the sun, the skin begins to shed dry and dead cells, clogging pores and making acne worse."

Acne sufferers, whether they are in their teens or forties, need to pay special attention to their summer skin care regimen, advises Kathy Fields, M.D., a clinical instructor of dermatology at the University of California, San Francisco Medical Center. "Proper skin coverage and treatment during the summer may help avert the post-summer acne phenomenon dermatologists typically see each fall."

To help protect your acne-prone skin this summer, the two dermatologists recommend the following:

- Apply a sunscreen or sunblock product daily with a minimum SPF of 15 to all exposed skin (including the lips), even when it's hazy or cloudy. Additional sunscreen should be used in periods of prolonged sun exposure. "Sunscreen is essential to keeping skin healthy. It should be part of everyone's daily summer skin-care program," says Dr. Fields. Avoid intentional sunbathing or tanning, as well as sunlamps and tanning beds.

- Don't wash your face more than twice a day, and only use mild, non-drying soaps. Use gentle cleansers that will not irritate the surface of the skin but are strong enough to combat the acne. Try cleansers that contain salicylic acid.

Medically proven treatments like Retin-A Micro are among a number of remedies available from a dermatologist. Retin-A Micro, a gentler form of Retin-A, delivers the maximum strength of tretinoin that enables a fast clearing of acne lesions with minimal irritation. Researchers also believe that Retin-A Micro may reduce the appearance of facial oiliness (shine) on the skin's surface.

Keep your teeth in your mouth, not in a glass

If you're among the 40 million baby boomers hovering somewhere around age 50, you may have noticed that a few things — like your eyesight or memory — aren't working the way they used to. While changes like these are inevitable, there's another change that may be preventable: the loss of your teeth. From early to middle adulthood, many of us experience little-to-no tooth decay and, consequently, our oral hygiene may become lax. (When was your last visit to the dentist?)

However, the reality is that once you turn 50, tooth decay can once again become a problem. Gum-line and interproximal (between the teeth) cavities begin to eat away at your teeth and, left unchecked, this decay can lead to tooth loss and even dentures. In fact, 40 percent of people age 65 or older have lost most, if not all of their teeth. As the average life span increases, so does the likelihood of outliving your teeth. Fortunately, today we have better preventative measures than our parents did and new technology to help ward off tooth decay.

According to Lawrence Wolinsky, Ph.D., D.M.D., director of clinical research at the UCLA School of Dentistry, "Consistent oral hygiene is still the best way to prevent cavities. Many of the technological advances in the dental office involve better ways to repair teeth that have already been damaged, but prevention of that damage in the first place can really be affected by the patient."

Wolinsky offers these suggestions to people who want to prevent adult tooth decay:

- Brush at least twice a day. In general, most people should use a soft-bristle toothbrush and a fluoride toothpaste that helps "re-mineralize" tooth enamel by replacing lost minerals, making enamel stronger and reversing early-stage tooth decay. New research in the area of cavity prevention has led to the development of Enamelon Anti-Cavity Fluoride Toothpaste, which helps promote the re-mineralization process by providing fluoride together with calcium and phosphate, the building blocks of tooth enamel. Wolinsky, who has been actively involved in the research on Enamelon, has been pleased with the results he has seen to date.
- Floss every day. Flossing is probably the best way to keep gums healthy and help prevent cavities between teeth. Gently move the floss back and forth on both sides of each tooth including the back side of your last molars. If your teeth are very close together, try using a waxed or "shred-proof" floss.
- See your dentist twice a year. Even if you're lucky enough not to have receding gums, sensitivity or periodontal disease, your dentist still should be monitoring you for cavities, particularly at the gum line and in between teeth.

A friendly reminder from Wolinsky: "Prevention and early detection are your best bets for keeping strong, healthy teeth throughout your lifetime. Be sure to do your part."

New answers to end chronic fatigue syndrome

In 1997, Pat Peters celebrated the end of her eight-year struggle with Chronic Fatigue Syndrome (CFS). Her success is linked to several types of new, highly individualized pharmaceuticals.

America's top research scientists and physicians are revealing the current revolution in custom-made medicines. It first began in the 1950s when DNA was discovered, and has accelerated in the 1990s to allow pharmaceutical-grade medicines to be individualized for each patient's body to overcome disease.

Peters used such custom-made medicines to end her chronic fatigue. Experts suggest this could end health challenges including cancer and heart disease. Currently, only a few medical facilities — like the clinic Peters visited in Nevada — offer these individualized medicines because the clinics must hold two licenses: medical and pharmaceutical. Plus, an on-site lab and uniquely trained staff are required. However, the results are astounding. People from all over the world visit the Nevada clinic to stop and reverse CFS and autoimmune disorders.

For six weeks, Peters was prescribed medicine specifically made for her body and condition. She regained her energy and felt as though the CFS had left her body. Independent medical test results confirmed her feelings. Peters has been free of CFS for two years. The details of her personal story, a list of CFS symptoms and the newest information on the trends in custom-made medicines are being offered to the public in a free special report, "New Answers to End Chronic Fatigue Syndrome."

TRAVEL AND VACATION

More adventures paddling the land of Wow: Rivers of our National Parks

Courtesy of Article Resource Association

Most national parks aren't designed around rivers. They are built around geologic features such as Yellowstone's geysers or historic sites like Gettysburg. Still, our finest rivers — those with the highest Wow Factors — flow through our national parks.

We were a small flotilla of canoes and sea kayaks drifting down the Green River in Canyonlands National Park. Every day on the river we went deeper into wilderness. Every day we went deeper into ourselves.

Each bend of the river presented a new landscape: A falcon rising from a box canyon; a sheer sandstone wall a thousand feet high; an ancient shelter left by some extinct tribe.

We wanted to somehow quantify these scenes, to compare them. So we invented the Wow Factor. If we spied a new slickrock canyon and half of us said, "Wow," the scene earned a Wow Factor 5. If a certain quality of light caught almost everyone's eye, it received a Wow Factor 7 The ultimate scene left us all slack-jaw and amazed: Wow Factor 10.

National Parks, it seems to me, are the Land of Wow.

Most national parks aren't designed around rivers. They are built around geologic features such as Yellowstone's geysers or Yosemite's granite, or historic sites like Gettysburg or Little Bighorn battlefields. Still, our finest rivers-those with the highest Wow Factors-flow through our national parks.

Every summer, millions of us launch our own personal adventures, heading for these select parks. RIVER Magazine has compiled a list of some of the best National Parks for river lovers and if you go without a canoe or kayak atop your car, or without packing your fly-rod ... well, don't blame us for the "wows" you miss.

Yellowstone National Park and Grand Teton National Park, Wyoming

Yellowstone is the granddaddy of all national parks. It's fabled for wildlife and geysers, but 5 percent of its 2.2-million acres is water. That includes some of the cleanest, wildest, and most storied rivers anywhere. Rivers like the Yellowstone-with its waterfalls and its Grand Canyon-and the steaming Firehole, but also the Madison, Lamar, Lewis, and Gardiner rivers.

Yellowstone Park is not welcoming to river paddlers. The rivers are cold and swift, and boats are generally prohibited. Still, there are many other ways to enjoy the park's running water. Most famously, there is fishing. Yellowstone's eighteen species of fish attract flycasters from across the world. The native Yellowstone cutthroat trout are the most prized, but there are also exotic browns and rainbows.

Flyfishing in Yellowstone suffers, though, from its own reputation. You can literally be shoulder-to-shoulder with other fishermen. The same trout may be caught-and-released dozens of times annually in the park's most popular waters.

The alternative to this zoo is simple: Walk. Most park visitors seem to be attached to their cars by an invisible rope, and the quietwater is just beyond the length of that rope. Another tip: Don't overlook the small streams and tributaries.

The other way to avoid the hordes is to visit in the fall or spring. September is my favorite month in Yellowstone: The fishing is the best and the bull elk are bugling their challenges through the high country. I hope Heaven is half so good.

Just to the south is Yellowstone's little sister, Grand Teton National Park. Here, the headwaters of the Snake River flow from jagged 12,000-foot peaks. The Snake coils through a cottonwood-forested bottom, each bend offering a gleaming new view of the Tetons. Driftboats bob past, filled with anglers casting for the Snake's fine-spotted cutthroat trout.

The thirty miles of the Snake that flow through Grand Teton are divided into 3 segments, rated from beginning to advanced. The advanced segment presents paddlers with logjams, sweepers, and braided channels. "It's a seemingly innocent river, but will hammer anybody from beginner to advanced on a given day," says one river ranger.

Wow Factor? Take your pick: Feeling the mist from the falls in the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone. Watching bison ford the Lamar. Soaking in the geothermally heated Boiling River as snowflakes melt in the steam.

C&O Canal and Harpers Ferry, in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland

Harpers Ferry is a former federal armory saturated with American history. It also happens to be at the confluence of two of the East's most notable rivers, the Potomac and the Shenandoah. When Lewis and Clark explored the West, they carried guns forged at Harpers Ferry. When John Brown revolted against slavery, he attempted to take over the armory here. During the Civil War, the town was the scene of bloody battles.

And if you're visiting Washington D.C. and need a river fix, this is the place for it. "The passage of the Patowmac through the Blue Ridge is perhaps one of the most stupendous scenes in Nature," wrote one early visitor named Thomas Jefferson. The bluff above Harper's Ferry is the most westerly spot Jefferson ever reached.

Nowadays, the Appalachian Trail passes through town. The mountains flanking Harpers Ferry are still cloaked in hardwoods. If you catch the fall colors at their peak, consider yourself blessed.

Great Falls of the Potomac and the C & O Canal offer a natural diversion after a day of touring museums and monuments in Washington. The sound of the river drowns out the hum of traffic and the lush forest stands in contrast to the urban landscape hidden not far away. The historic C & O (Chesapeake and Ohio) Canal is a 184-mile long greenbelt running along the Potomac. It runs from the posh Washington D. C. suburb of Georgetown, past Harpers Ferry, to the upstream community of Cumberland, Maryland.

Historically, mules pulled barges ferrying coal and other raw materials up and down the canal from a tow path along the bank. Now, the path hosts joggers, walkers and anglers. The Potomac crosses the Washington Beltway near the Great Falls. Here, kayakers peel out of wetsuits, slip into suits and ties, and head back to work after a midday paddling break.

The canal path has 34 primitive campsites, right along the river. In theory, a canoer can float between campsites. Check your map carefully, though, because the campsites are not always visible from the water. The paddling is Class II, and the major danger is a series of small dams that must be portaged. Wow Factor? Standing in the footsteps of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, pondering how the nation they founded 223 years ago treats its rivers, both for work and for play.

Both Harpers Ferry and C & O Canal Headquarters can be contacted at, PO Box 4, Sharpsburg, MD, 21782. Phone: (301) 739-4200.

Congaree Swamp National Monument, South Carolina

When Spanish explorer Hernando De Soto marched through the territory of the Congaree Indians, South Carolina had perhaps a million acres of old-growth floodplain. After four centuries of exploitation, a mere 13,000 acres remain. Fortunately, 11,000 of those acres are protected in this national monument.

This is the largest old-growth floodplain east of the Mississippi River. A visit is akin to time-travel. The Congaree River floods the monument 10 times a year. The floods replenish the soil and grow some of the biggest trees in the East. Loblolly pine, cypress, and cherrybark oak tower overhead.

The 87 species of trees here support a broad array of wildlife, from native otters and bobcats to exotic wild boar. Birders are drawn by Congaree's eight species of woodpeckers and the Swainson's warbler. In summer, a dense canopy of leaves arches over the river. In places, canoers paddle through a lush, green tunnel. Warblers sing and frolic overhead while the river gently pulls your boat downstream.

Canoe travel along the Congaree can consist of short outings or overnighters. The paddle from Cedar Creek to the Highway 601 bridge is a 20-mile route that lends itself to a primitive overnighter. On land, the Park Service maintains a trail network, with hikes ranging from short boardwalks to 10-mile treks. Fishing for catfish, black and striped bass is allowed in most of the monument under state regulations.

The river fluctuates with upstream rains. Rising water can swamp camps and falling levels can leave your boat stranded. The main water trail is periodically cleared of debris, but a wrong turn can force you to drag your canoe through a field of downed logs. Also, beware of copperheads, cottonmouth, and other venomous snakes, mosquitoes and deer flies, and poison ivy. Visiting the monument is free, although donations are accepted. Primitive camping is also free, although a permit is required. "This is a four-season park," said one official. "It can be enjoyed every month of the year."

Wow Factor? Joining hands with your paddling friends, trying to measure the girth of a giant cherrybark oak tree that somehow survived decades of logging and 1989's Hurricane Hugo.

Yukon-Charley River National Preserve, Alaska

If you're the kind of paddler who has longed all your life for a true wilderness paddling experience, Yukon-Charley in interior Alaska may be your destination. It's the kind of place that requires long planning and plenty of experience, but it offers rewards that only comes from wilderness adventure. The 1,800-mile long Yukon is one of our nation's mightiest and most legendary rivers. This preserve protects 100 miles of that river.

Moreover, the preserve protects the entire Charley River drainage, from source to mouth. That's a 108-mile river and a 1.1 million-acre watershed. The drainage has no roads. It doesn't even have any maintained trails. Because of its clear water, bold whitewater and untouched vistas, Alaskans consider the Charley one of their most spectacular rivers.

The preserve was created in 1980 and encompasses some 2.5 million acres, the size of Yellowstone Park. It is home to wolves, caribou, and Dall sheep and has the continent's highest concentration of nesting peregrine falcons. Technically, Yukon-Charley is a national preserve, not a national park. The land is managed by the National Park Service, but is open to some uses that are barred in traditional parks, such as hunting and trapping.

Boats and airplanes, often in combination, are the two most popular ways to visit Yukon-Charley. Floaters load rafts on bush planes and fly to the upper reaches of the Charley to float downstream. But planes cost money. A bush plane from Tok to the headwaters of the Charley runs $1,200. The downstream run includes a steady course of Class III whitewater.

Other potential floats don't require aircraft. One option is the Yukon, between Eagle and Circle, which is a 150-mile trip. Just outside the park, the Fortymile River also affords whitewater floating and has road access. But take this trip seriously. The Park Service brochure is blunt: "Novice boaters have no business...on these wilderness rivers."

The Yukon tends to run silty and is not known for its fishing. Several tributaries, however, are clear and sport grayling and other species. Start dreaming.

Wow Factor? The moment the bush plane leaves you at the put-in when you become aware of the total silence and know your party is utterly on its own for the next hundred miles.

COUNTY DIGEST

Geo-Karis sponsors safety legislation

Making Illinois schools safer is the goal of new legislation co-sponsored by State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion).

Gov. George Ryan signed into law the Attorney General's "Safe to Learn" package at Fenton High School in Bensenville.

Geo-Karis said she believes "we've got to do something to have more safety in the schools" and the new laws are an important first step.

"Violence has become an everyday occurrence in many schools," said Geo-Karis. "That has to make is hard for kids to learn."

Composting bins available June 19

Lake County residents interested in composting their organic waste will have an opportunity to obtain a popular home compost bin at a discounted price.

In an effort to order a management alternative for organic materials primarily food wastes, the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County is offering a home organics composting bin to residents at a cost of $20 per bin.

The SWALCO-sponsored bin distribution will be at held June 19, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m at the College of Lake County in Grayslake. There are also sites in Waukegan, Long Grove, Highland Park and Lake Forest.

Waukegan sweetens deal for University

County would only need to add $3.3 million, down from $11 million

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

The city of Waukegan has attempted to sweeten the pot for the proposed University Center of Lake County to be located at Lakehurst Shopping Center.

The Waukegan City Council offered a $3 million contribution to help the county defer a portion of its cost of the project. It also proposed issuing bonds to fund the remainder of the county's share, with the expectation those bonds would be paid over a 15-year period.

Ray Vukovich, chairman of the Waukegan City Council's Finance Committee, said the $3 million contribution is designed to help the county meet its obligation for funding University Center construction. The state of Illinois has agreed to contribute half of the total cost of construction, with the county picking up the rest.

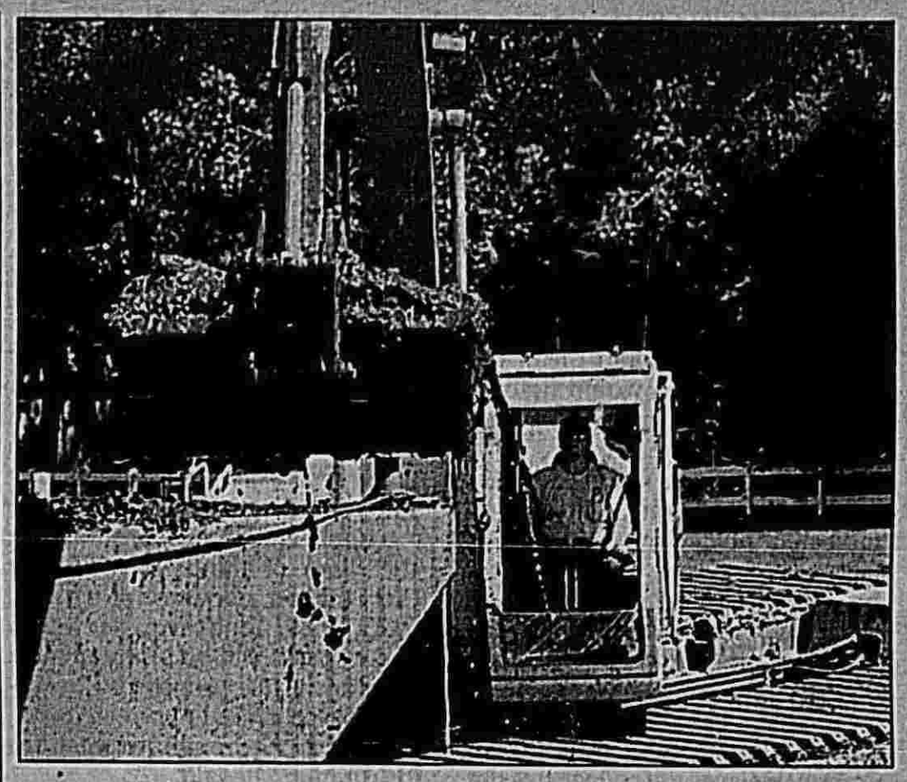

Vukovich said the City Council plan attempts to answer "the call of where we come up with the (rest of the) funds."

"I think the Waukegan plan providing the matching share answers a good portion of the question," he said.

Martin Tuohy, developer of the proposed University Station at Lakehurst, said the estimated cost for Phase 1 construction at the site is $12.6 million.

"It's significantly less than the

Landfill violations may be dealt with; SWALCO pact

Final deal on landfill issue could be inked by end of the month

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

Local, state and federal agencies are close to reaching a consent order with Countryside Landfill to address violations at the Grayslake site.

Details of the court-ordered agreement are still being worked out but a deal could be finalized by the end of the month, according to Andy Quigley, executive director of the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County.

Officials for Waste Management Inc., which operates the landfill, have been in ongoing discussions with the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, the Lake County State's Attorney's Office, the county health department, and the Illinois Attorney General's Office about the matter.

The Lake County Board adopted a resolution this month in support of the terms laid out in the tentative consent order.

"The consent agreement is the final resolution which is enforceable in a court of law regarding the odor and overfill (issues)," said Quigley.

Quigley said the agreement, if accepted by all parties, would not require the siting of a new landfill in Lake County.

However, Waste Management would be required to address overfill problems that have occurred in the past. Specifically, the company would be required to maintain the landfill within its permitted design contours and would not be able to go beyond those boundaries.

In addition, Waste Management

Heavy rains do damage along Fox River, Fox Lake area

By STEVE PETERSON
and JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Staff Reporters

Neighbors along the Fox River and area creeks are hoping for continued dry days to allow basements and streets to recover from the onslaught of days of rain.

Bob Klug who lives along the Fox River near Antioch, knows the feeling. As of Monday, the river hadn't even crested yet and he and his wife, Sarah, were forced to evacuate their home.

"We don't how bad this one's going to be yet," said Klug, who lives west of Antioch along the Fox River in the Fox River Springs subdivision.

Klug said he and at least two of his neighbors along the river were also forced to evacuate their homes due to high water and street flooding. He said they helped their next door neighbor, an 85-year-old woman, get out of her home before the flooding became too severe.

"We almost had to carry her through the water," he said. "She just got out of the hospital."

Klug said the last time he can remember the water level being this high was back in 1991. "It could be worse (than '91)," he said.

'It could get really nasty. This is the worst flooding we have seen since 1993'

Jim Pappas
Fox Lake Mayor

More than four inches of rain taxed the water levels of several basements and rerouted traffic over this past weekend.

In Johnsburg, the village reported homes taking on some water.

"Numerous homes in town took on water due to excessive rain. The streets were passable—it was just slow," said Ken Lopez, village administrator.

While the Fox Waterway Agency closed the Chain O'Lakes and Fox River between the Wisconsin border and the mouth of the Fox River south of Pistakee Lake for no-wake restrictions, local communities are bracing for more trouble.

DEAL: City of Waukegan sweetens university deal with cash

$22 million originally estimated (by the State Board of Higher Education). We've done everything we can to bring the cost down," he said.

The state is obligated to pay half of that amount, or $6.3 million, and the city of Waukegan would contribute $3 million, according to Tuohy. That would would mean the county's obligation would be only $3.3 million, significantly lower than at any other site, he said.

However, State Board of Higher Education president Ed Moore has indicated the decision on where to locate the University Center will not be primarily based on financial issues, but where is the best site for a higher education facility in Lake County.

Evelyn Schiele, director of public relations for the College of Lake County, believes the college has the site that best serves the needs of Lake County residents.

The college has proposed constructing the University Center on a 14-acre vacant parcel of land on the northeast corner of the campus.

Schiele said the CLC site would have the advantage of leveraging existing resources over time, such as library, maintenance and day care services, thus resulting in a cost savings over time.

Schiele said a survey done of CLC graduates by the State Board of Higher Education indicates a majority would like to see the University Center located on the existing campus.

"CLC graduates are likely to be a major source of students for the University Center," she said.

Ken Marabella, administrator for the Village of Mundelein, said he is "very excited" about the prospect of a University Center in Lake County and hopes it will be in Mundelein. Mundelein has proposed a downtown site at a former business park.

"We feel we're still very much in the running," he said.

In addition to the cost factor, Tuohy said other advantages of the Lakehurst site are accessibility to major traffic arteries and population centers and the potential for redevelopment of Waukegan.

RAINS: Fox Lake sees worst floods since 1993

These restrictions closed the Fox River between Pistakee Lake and the Algonquin Dam to all motorized watercraft due to high water and strong currents. The no-wake rules are expected to be in effect for at least a week. Nippersink Creek, one of the Fox River's main tributaries, which enters the system in northern Pistakee Lake, has extremely fast moving and dangerous currents, according to the Fox Waterway Agency.

"It could get really nasty. This is the worst flooding we have seen since 1993," Fox Lake mayor Jim Pappas said.

Pete Jakstas, Emergency Services Disaster Agency coordinator for Fox Lake, gave trustees specifics at the last board meeting.

"We are getting more water into Fox Lake than they can discharge at the McHenry dam," Jakstas said.

The upper Fox River was three feet over flood stage. Monday, Fox Lake rose two inches in six hours.

Fox Lake had risen four inches in a 12-hour period as of Tuesday morning, six inches for two days.

He said Fox Lake officials were ready to have some sandbagging operations, should they become necessary. The sand was donated as well as received from McHenry County.

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago is providing resources to help residents of Lake and McHenry counties clean up after this week's flooding. Clean up kits, which include the tools and information to properly sanitize a home after a flood, are available at T.J.'s Chicken and Ribs, 286 E. Grand Ave., in Fox Lake. In addition, Red Cross outreach teams will continue to canvass the areas affected to hand out kits and assess the damage.

LANDFILL: SWALCO cuts deal for fine would agree to properly close an abandoned landfill adjacent to the existing landfill, according to Quigley. That landfill has been unused since 1973 but was not properly closed at that time.

Waste Management would close the landfill and conduct well water tests to prevent leaching of waste materials into the surface and groundwater. The company would also be required to conduct additional well water testing at the existing landfill, Quigley said.

Quigley said the company has already taking steps to address the smell problem at the landfill. A new odor control system has been constructed which better contains underground odors and more quickly burns off gaseous materials, he said.

Quigley said all the provisions of the consent agreement would be subject to careful monitoring.

"We think it addresses the violations but it doesn't preclude (the possibility of) future violations," he said. "It's expected that the landfill needs perform as regulated."

Dennis Wilt, an attorney for Waste Management, declined to discuss details of the consent order until an agreement is finalized.

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Supercenter to open in Gurnee

Gurnee—Hoover Materials Handling Group of Alpharetta, Ga. will soon be opening a supercenter in Gurnee.

The new 120,000 square foot facility, to be located at 2005 Delany Road, is expected to open on June 30.

This Midwest Supercenter will be the second of its kind to provide a fully-integrated approach to industrial packaging. The facility will allow for manufacturing, inventory, distribution, collection, and recycling.

Hoover manufactures industrial packaging products and delivers packaging solutions for chemical, petroleum, and food processing operations.

Village to hire new officers

Mundelein—The streets of Mundelein will soon be safer thanks to a vote by the village board to hire five additional patrol officers.

With the help of a COPS FAST grant, the village will soon be able to increase its patrol officer team from 30 to 35. Village officials decided it would be in the best interest of the village to raise the number of patrol officers.

The new officers will join the patrol staff after attending the police academy.

According to the amended ordinance, the police department will now have 35 patrol officers, four sergeants, three commanders, two deputy chiefs, and one chief of police.

Car race raises $4K for D.A.R.E.

Round Lake Beach—The Round Lake Beach Police Department and Super Kmart teamed up last weekend to benefit their Drug Abuse Resistance Education program with the Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs.

Over 800 children ages 7 to 12 signed a pledge to stay drug-free, then strapped on their seat belts and drove electric miniature race cars through a closed skill-driving course in Super Kmart's parking lot.

For every kid who crossed the finish line, the Kmart Family Foundation donated $5 to the Round Lake Beach Police Department's D.A.R.E. program.

A whopping $4,000 was raised for the D.A.R.E. program, which will go toward the many weeks of school instruction by the police, program completion certificates, awards, and prizes.

Plus, the fastest children from each race will be entered in regional drawings to win all-expense paid trips to the National Championship in Orlando, Florida, to compete for $10,000 college scholarships.

Tempel Lipizzan season begins

Wadsworth—Tempel Farms in Wadsworth announces their summer season of Tempel Lipizzan performances. Lipizzans are a rare breed of white stallions whose classical dressage performances are known throughout the world.

On opening day, the public will have a chance to view the rare twin Lipizzan foals born last year. After this, they won't be seen in public for at least five years.

The first performance is Wednesday, June 23 at 10:30 a.m. Tempel Farms is located at the corner of Hunt Club Road. and Wadsworth Road. Performances will run every Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. and Sundays at 1 p.m. through September 1.

Tickets will be available at the gate. Prices are $14 for adults, $12 for senior citizens, and $5 for children ages 4 through 14. Group discounts may be arranged by calling (847) 244-5330. In case of inclement weather, performances will be held indoors. Parking is free.
For additional information call (847) 623-7272.

Eagle Homes faces negative vote

Ingleside—Pat O'Keefe raised one of many signs which stated the feeling of a room full of residents opposed to a townhome development.

O'Keefe, a school board member, was the first of many speakers opposing Eagle Homes' plans for Duck Creek Crossing, a 35-acre development which would seek annexation to Fox Lake.

The crowd gathered at Fox Lake Volunteer Fire Station No. 2 erupted in applause when zoning board members approved a motion to pass an unfavorable recommendation to Fox Lake trustees.

"It really needed to be pointed out that this is not the only possibility for this land. There was a lot of intense interest. I was pleased to see the board members vote unanimously against it," O'Keefe said.

Objectors sought a single-family home development more compatible with their Ingleside area homes. Eagle Homes of Antioch president Ken Wisniewski said that was not an option for the site, located near Routes 59 and 12. Traffic flow was also a concern for residents, who said the area is already dangerous.

Schools get computer loan

Lake Villa—Last year, Lake Villa School District #41 had a goal: to have one computer lab for grades Kindergarten through 5, two computer labs in Palombi school, and to have two computers in each classroom. According to Superintendent Alan Simon, a total of 238 new computers were purchased, and the goal was met with encouraging results.

For the next school year, District #41 has decided to extend its goals, with the help of a $243,000 loan from the state. The plan is to have two computer labs in grades K-5, three labs in Palombi, and at least two to three computers per classroom. The computers for grades K-5 are being purchased this month, while the computers for 6-8 will be purchased later in the summer. The newest computers are to be placed in the labs, and the older ones in the classrooms. The Internet is already accessible at every computer in both schools, allowing for an even more technologically advanced environment.

Waucondafest next weekend

Wauconda—"The Buckinghams" are headed to town to help the Wauconda Park District celebrate the 20th anniversary of Waucondafest.

The annual summer festival is being held Thursday, June 24, through Sunday, June 27, at spacious Cook Park, 600 N. Main St., on the shores of Bangs Lake.

Waucondafest '99 features live bands every night, the Taste of Wauconda and a Beer Garden, carnival rides for the kids, appearances by "Dipsy" the Teletubby, a car show, an arts and crafts fair, and much more.

Waucondafest hours are 5 to 10 p.m. June 24, 5 p.m. to midnight June 25, noon to 11 p.m. June 26 and noon to 9 p.m. June 27. A one-time entry fee of $2 for adults provides four-days of entertainment. Children under 5 years old are admitted free.

Dist. 127 seeks land

Grayslake—Expanding Grayslake Community High School to a capacity of 2,000 student by the 2000-2001 school year will do a lot in easing overcrowded classrooms.

However, it will only help for so long, as in 10 years the Grayslake Community High School District 127 is projected to have an enrollment of 3,000 students, said Superintendent Ray A. Novak.

The district is continuing to negotiate to purchase property, preferably in the northern portion of its boundaries, to build a school which at first would serve as a freshman campus, Novak said.

"We have a couple big tracts we are looking at," he said. Any purchase is far from being final, he added. "We would really need to be anywhere north of Washington Street," Novak said.

One killed; many hurt in crash

Wauconda—The driver of a vehicle was trapped when her vehicle was hit by a semi-truck which hit six other vehicles at Route 12 and Old Rand Road. The semi-truck involved is owned by Jevic, Inc., of New Jersey. Its driver, Frank Rittenhouse, age 55, of Brockway, Pa., was charged with failure to yield to avoid an accident.

One person was killed, Tracy Ecklund, age 32 of Wauconda. She was ejected from her Ford Mustang and pronounced dead at the scene. A dog in the car was also killed.

Ecklund's vehicle was the first vehicle hit by the semi-tractor trailer. The post-collision fire was put out by fire extinguishers.

Mundelein chief to attend LEEDS

Mundelein—Police Chief Raymond Rose was invited to attend the 39th session of the Law Enforcement Executive Development Seminar (LEEDS) at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va.

The LEEDS program began on June 13.

Some of the topics which Rose will have an opportunity to learn about are the political, social, and economic trends affecting law enforcement, labor relations, the media, affirmative action, and the executive role.

The LEEDS program will end on June 25.

Maternal aunt wins custody

Gurnee—A Cook County Circuit Court judge awarded permanent custody of 3-year-old Ryan LaMere to his maternal aunt Janette Leathem.

Leathem had cared for LaMere since tragedy struck their family on Memorial Day of 1998. Ryan's father, Daniel LaMere, killed his mother Nancy, half-brother, Alex Lowe, and sister, Lauren Mank, before committing suicide in their Gurnee home. Ryan was left unharmed.

Both Leathem, Nancy's sister, and Donna Blauvelt, Daniel LaMere's sister, wanted custody of Ryan. A custody trial ensued between the two aunts. On June 7, court-ordered DNA tests found that Daniel LaMere was not Ryan's biological father. The court found that it was in Ryan's best interest that Leathem, a resident of Wheeling, have custody of Ryan.

Highway students ignoring the obvious

For some inexplicable reason, Lake County Transportation Improvement Project (TIP) continues to evade a direct response to the crying need to address mind-numbing east-west highway congestion during critical daily drive-time periods.

The study agency, funded jointly by the Illinois Div. of Transportation (IDOT) and the Illinois Tollway Authority, doesn't even answer the east-west question raised by TIP itself in a progress report. A question about widening existing roads as a solution brought forth a puzzling response that widening is but one of a "wide range of improvement options." Oh?

In response to its own question about east-west congestion, as typified by upgrading Rte. 22, Lake-Cook Rd., Washington St. and Peterson Rd., TIP offered the vapid observation that east-west problems are only part of general congestion. Double oh!

TIP insists vehemently that findings by some anti-Rte. 53 organizations that construction of the duplicative tollway will attract 60,000 new residents are incorrect. Who to believe? Whatever, TIP has a policy of downplaying the impact of Rte. 53, relegating the controversial highway construction plan to "one of a number of improvements we will consider."

As for population growth, TIP has zeroed in on a figure of 250,000 new Lake County residents by 2020 without any significant transportation improvements, sort of a ready-or-not, here-they-come attitude. The 250,000 population figure is attributed to IDOT, a guesstimate that has been challenged by demographers.

The TIP suggestion that highway transportation has little or no impact on population growth is hard to swallow. As supposedly serious students of Lake County growth, TIP seems to be missing some cogent points or is awfully slow to grasp reality. Lack of TIP certitude begs the question exactly what purpose this latest of highway studies serves.

Thankless office may be revised

Public service's most thankless job— serving on a local board of education— may be getting even less rewarding. The Wall Street Journal focused on how the school board's role is shifting with new educational choices like charters, vouchers and for-profit school management companies.

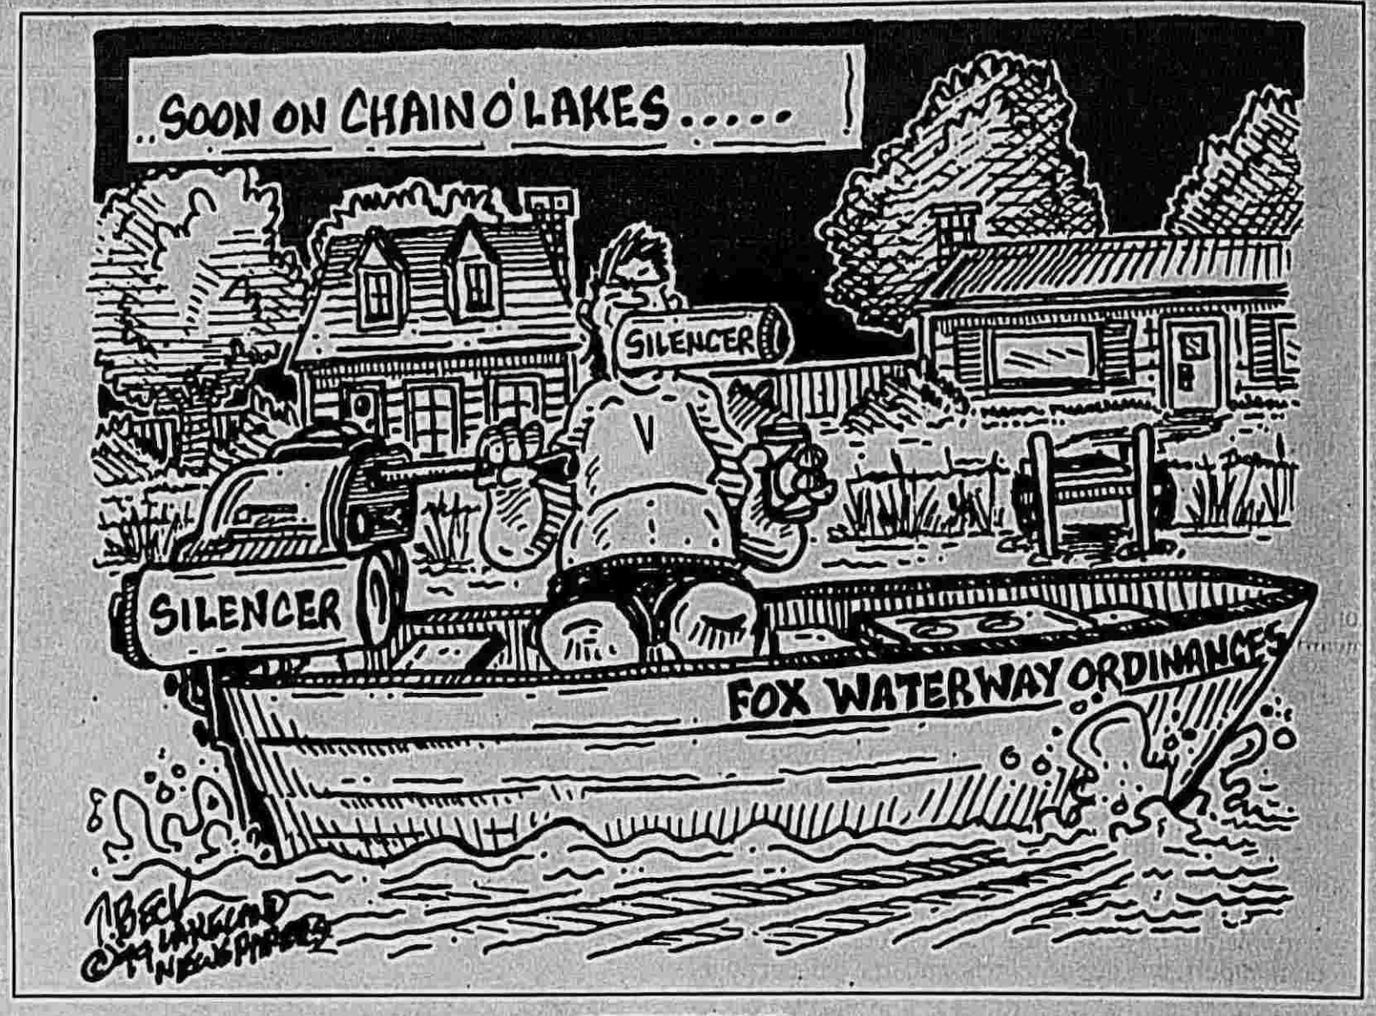

In Lake County, a glimpse of what is coming has been offered with the charter school movement where the centrally located Woodland Consolidated Dist., its classrooms bulging from rampant growth, and Fremont Consolidated in rural Mundelein will be sharing revenues with a new charter district starting this fall, Prairie Crossing Charter School, Rte. 45.

Election to a school board post is less fulfilling to service-minded citizens these days because it has become so complicated. No longer does the job consist of hiring a superintendent, building buildings and traditional curriculum oversight. The school board job has evolved to such social engineering add-ons as sex and drug education, family living instruction and sensitivity training. And now the advent of "education choice." Whatever happened to reading, writing and arithmetic?

A professor of public affairs found that school boards are heading toward the business of "buying" education instead of supplying education through the contractural process. Teachers unions hate this thought because it puts the spotlight on performance and achievement.

The Journal found that Republican leaders like the contracting concept because it plays to greater parental control. At the same time, the Journal noted that a Democratic think tank has endorsed it and forwarded the idea to Vice President Gore. With the cloak of bi-partisanship, there might be a future for school contracting.

So a thankless job might be facing better days. But probably not soon.

Relax! Hillary's not coming home

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

Word from the eastern provinces is that First Lady Hillary Clinton has signed and sealed a deal to begin her campaign for the U.S. Senate from New York, meaning she'll be hitting the stump in earnest in 10 weeks. As if she hasn't been already

For Illinois, that's the best political news to come down the pike since Jesse Jackson decided to become a world peace broker. Phew. Pretty close call for the Land of Lincoln.

Ever since this column came across Hillary the Great's Senate aspirations two years ago (we had a spy at Main High's class reunion where Mrs. Clinton revealed her fantasy of serving in the U.S. Senate), the dread of a Hillary Rodham Clinton candidacy has hung like a pall. Now we can relax.

Even heavyweight Democrat polls in Cook County are smiling when Clinton (Mrs.) is mentioned instead of wearing a sick grin at the thought of the ex-Park Ridge resident shouldering her way into the Illinois political mainstream. Most happy fella of all is certain to be U.S. Sen. Whiffle Ball (alias Dick Durbin) who would have been shouldered aside to make room for THE Clinton run.

Fact is that New York Democratic politics is a lot different than the variety practiced in Illinois. Hillary just doesn't fit in with our system. First of all, genuine liberals are few and far between in these parts. Hyde Park, the Chicago Lake Front, some college campuses around the state perhaps. Instead of high and mighty causes, humanitarianism in far off places, reconstructing American society, etc.,— all the typical passions of eastern liberal Democrats— Illinois Dems are interested in winning elections in Cook County, getting highway and school money for Chicago, and controlling the General Assembly. Patronage puts the "P" in politics in Illinois.

That's all pretty grubby stuff for the First Lady and the reason why she's more comfortable in adopting another state to make a Senate run instead of competing in the state of her birth. Lucky New York.

Yes, close call for Illinois. Couldn't have happened to a finer state and a more wonderful bunch of staunch Americans.

A real dog day

Jo Ann Bednar has noticed that dogs have become a big part of the coffee shop she operates, so much that she will sponsor Dog Appreciation Day, June 25, at Lake Bluff Coffee Co., 41 E. Scranton. From 6:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fido will receive a doggy treat. Outside, of course, where the faithful companions wait while their masters sip latté and cappuccino.

Putting on the dog for pets will benefit Orphans of the Storm, the more than half century old animal shelter and adoption center in Riverwoods. Bednar has been a big fan of Orphans of the Storm since adopting Lad, a mixed terrier, 10 years ago. So Dog Appreciation Day is pay-back time. Petland Supply & Pets of Lake Forest is co-sponsoring the event.

Honor grads

Two graduates of North Chicago High are the 1999 recipients of Blue Jacket Classic scholarships of $500 each, raised in connection with the annual North Chicago Navy Day held in September. Tonietta Wheatle, class valedictorian, will attend Northwestern to study computer engineering. Christopher Norman, a Navy ROTC leader, has an appointment to the US. Naval Academy.

CCC days recalled

Mention in this column several weeks ago of the Lake County Youth Conservation Corps brought back memories of George Thompson serving in the Civilian Conservation Corps, a Depression era service organization for young men 60 years ago.

George said he joined the CCC to help out his family during that difficult time. Thompson, a World War II veteran and active member of Fox Lake American Legion, was sent to Jordan, Ore. Volunteers were paid $5 a month and the government sent $20 a month home.

"We built 'spike' camps, gravel roads and small bridges. Most of us were in our teens and from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. It was a good experience and well worth the six months," George wrote. In Thompson's opinion, similiar experience today would help youth "act a lot better."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A levy for years

It's too incredible to believe. Evelyn Hoselton campaigned for mayor of Wadsworth in part on reducing the village's legal fees (never mind that as a trustee she voted FOR the legal actions that caused the attorney's fees in the first place). Her solution—replace the existing village attorney with another who: 1. Charges the same fees as the original attorney. 2. has no municipal law experience.

When the village trustees rightfully rejected this absurd plan, Evelyn's new tactic is to SUE the village board. That's right, to reduce legal fees, she's going to embroil the village in an expensive court case.

Can't wait to see what the village's legal fees will be on this one. Moreover, she has had her attorney attend at least three village meetings, and doubtless has had private meetings with him as well. None of those expenses has been approved by the board. Is she paying him herself? Who does she think is going to pay for all of this

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Seidenfeld mending

Wealthy Atty. Glen Seidenfeld is recovering from bypass surgery after suffering a heart attack. Seidenfeld, a principal in efforts to bring casino riverboat gambling to Fox Lake, was felled about the same time word spread that the long available license would be awarded to Rosemont. The Rosemont selection effectively puts other sites on hold indefinitely.

House Speaker Dennis Hastert got as close to Lake County as Woodstock in McHenry County, speaking at a fundraiser for Congressman Don Manzullo. But that's as near as he'll be for a good long time. Hastert turned down an invite to address the annual Lake County Republican Federation dinner this spring.

Ray Woefel, building commissioner of the Village of Round Lake, has a new title, administrative adviser. He may be the first in this capacity in Lake County.

New Park City Clerk Denise Pannell was well versed in affairs of the community upon stepping in to fill a vacancy. Pannell kept abreast of council workings through her husband, Stephen, a former alderman. Pannell replaces Theresa Oldham and will serve until the next election in April, 2001.

Beer ban raises mystery at celebration

Who banned the beer?

That's a question circulating in connection with the annual Libertyville Days celebration running Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 17 to 18.

There will be a parade, games children's rides, entertainment and food galore at Taste of Libertyville. But nary a foamy beverage to slack the thirst of perspiring celebrators.

Not a village decision, as reported by a weekly news publication

Laska: Village did not spoil the beer fun

Hastert: Visited McHenry County, turned down Lake

(not this newspaper). Mayor Duane Laska said the decision not to serve beer must have originated elsewhere, but it wasn't because of an official council action.

For many years, members of the Libertyville Lions Club operated a beer tent as part of fundraising activities. In recent years, the Noon Rotary Club sold beer.

Jet set expands

A couple of more jet skies have been added to the Chain O'Lakes fleet. By the Sheriff's Water Patrol, no less. Sheriff Gary Del Re said two jets will be operated by the marine unit to provide better coverage of boating activities.

A stacked deck?

The process involved in selecting a site for the proposed University Center of Lake County has been a curious one indeed.

Three sites are still being considered by the Illinois State Board of Higher Education for the University Center: a 14-acre plot of land at the College of Lake County in Grayslake, a downtown site in Mundelein and the Lakehurst Shopping Center.

It appears from recent statements made by board president Ed Moore that CLC is the state's "favored" site for the University Center. This is curious because, of all three of the finalists, CLC has seemingly spent the least amount of time promoting their cause. Was CLC a shoe-in from the beginning and was this lengthy process of choosing a site just a charade? Did the state know it was going to choose CLC from the beginning?

It certainly makes one wonder, especially when you consider the fact that the University Center Task Force, which recommended CLC as one of the three finalists, contained three members with close ties to CLC.

Fewer meetings

The Fox Waterway Agency is cutting down on the number of meetings it holds every year.

The Fox Waterway Board voted to reduce the number of monthly meetings from 24 a year down to 12. That means the board will meet once a month, instead of two times each month.

Linda Ryckman, public affairs officer for the agency, said the board decided to eliminate its Committee of the Whole meetings, which were held the second Thursday of every month. The board will still hold regularly scheduled board meetings the fourth Thursday of every month, which are open to the public.

Ryckman said the board felt too much staff time was being spent preparing for meetings, such as getting agencies ready and sending out meeting notices to members. It also takes staff time to attend meetings and prepare meeting minutes.

"It's because a large amount of staff time was involving in setting up meetings. We have a small staff. We don't have a lot of persons to cover all of the different activities (the agency's involved in). This is a way we can get more accomplished with limited staff numbers."

Dad's Day? Just call me lucky

THE PFARR CORNER
Jerry Pfarr

My dad died 23 years ago, back in 1976 at the age of 81, but I feel he's still with me.

Especially now that I'm getting older, because the more I age the more I look and act like him.

Glancing in a mirror, sometimes I do a double take because for an instant it seems I just saw my dad.

My four brothers and I were fortunate, we had one of the all-time great fathers. His legacy to us was that of a quiet man with a twinkle in his eye, caring, honest and unselfish. He never lost his temper or found it necessary to use profanity.

Typical of the advice he gave us was that if we didn't have something good to say about a person, then we shouldn't say anything at all.

My parents have been gone for quite a few years but they are as close to me as ever; I still feel their presence. I wonder if other people identify with that.

I have just reread a book that was a gift from one of my offspring. It's "A Father's Book of Wisdom," by H. Jackson Brown, who compiled some 150 notes his dad left behind.

Brown says the family found eight shoe boxes in their father's closet filled with thoughts and observations that had been jotted down on scraps of paper, napkins, matchbook covers or whatever paper was available when he read or heard something memorable.

There are many I'd like to share with you but as Shakespeare said, "Brevity is the soul of wit," so here are just a few:

When an old person dies, a library is lost.

"When the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, he marks not that you won or lost, but how you played the game." (Grantland Rice)

Don't carry a grudge. While you're carrying the grudge the other guy's out dancing.

Real generosity is doing something nice for someone who'll never find it out.

You are the same today that you'll be five years from now, except for two things: the people you meet and the books you read.

Wealthy people miss one of life's greatest thrills— making the last car payment.

Back to me. I aim to reduce the mountain of clutter I've collected to what fits in a single shoe box. (That means I'll have to throw away the old trophies.)

If, after I've departed for that Pebble Beach in the sky, my kids check out the shoe box, what might they find? Pithy notes and quotes, wisdom and witticisms, and maybe lines to live by such as these:

First-rate people surround themselves with first-rate people, second-rate people with second-rate people.

I used to play water polo, but my horse drowned. (I don't know where it came from, but I love that line.)

A liberal is a conservative who hasn't been mugged. (That one, too.)

"Choose a job you love, and you will never have to work a day in your life." (Confucius)

And, getting back to Shakespeare, "Brevity is the soul of wit," so I'm outta here.

CLC University

This letter is to express my support for the proposed University Center and for the Illinois Board of Higher Education to locate it at the site offered by the College of Lake County.

In reviewing the information, I feel that if the politics of this decision are removed, and the decision is based on maximizing the educational impact of the multi-university then the Grayslake site stands out as the clear choice.

The College of Lake County has offered to donate approximately 15 acres of land on its existing campus for the construction of the multi-university. By locating the University Center at this site, the benefits to students and Lake County residents will be tremendous. In choosing a site for this educational facility, it is important that we remember:

This site offers the opportunity to design and build the optimal educational facility, rather than retro-fitting old buildings, which will not provide the best results.

This is an education project, not an economic development project. The location of the multi-university should maximize the benefit to students in Lake County, and not maximize the benefit to a developer or a commercial district.

Thirty years ago, it was deemed important that the county's premier educational facility should be in the geographic center of the county to best serve its clientele. Later, that same rationale was used in selecting a site for the Lake County High School Technology Campus.

This site allows for the sharing of resources between the College of Lake County and the new multi-university.

The CLC site, located on Washington Street in Grayslake, is only 1/4 mile from the intersection of Route 45 and Washington Street. The road system within one mile of this site is being expanded with many major improvements. Any traffic generated by the University Center will be accommodated most efficiently in this area.

Finally, we should remember the three rules of real estate; location, location, location. By locating CLC where they did, county leaders created an educational center that has been incredibly successful, providing educational opportunities to over 300,000 students since its inception. In contrast, the Lakehurst site failed in its previous life. Why? Location.

Also, keep in mind that the developer at the Lakehurst site has pitched a "sketch plan" for the development at that site. There are absolutely no guarantees that any of those plans will ever materialize.

I attended the hearing on March 4, where the Illinois Board of Higher Education listened to the presentations from the three proposed sites. The one thing that stood out most to me was the fact that two of the presentations centered on economic development issues associated with the location of this educational project. The College of Lake County focused on the key educational issues and the most efficient use of educational resources.

It is my hope that when the final decision is made, the University Center is located in the educational center of Lake County next to the College of Lake County.

Education verses profit

You may find the "inviting name of University Station" enough to justify locating a University at Lakehurst shopping center, but a practical tax payer citizen would first look at cost efficiencies.

Two, a committee reports to the Illinois Board of Higher Education state that "the college of Lake County will own the (University) Center's land and building which it will lease in perpetuity at a nominal fee to the University Center." The two reports also state they should share services such as: security, utilities, maintenance, tele-communications, laboratories, library, bookstore and some academic staff to "achieve cost efficiencies." Try that with a divided campus.

Sentimentalists don't like seeing a wasted shopping center standing vacant. Knowing that, the developer is trying to leverage "yes" votes by buying large ads meant to sway the votes of the Illinois Board of Higher Education. He touts every aspect as an asset-even the 750 senior citizen apartments he wants to build on the property, and the hotel, and the police station, and the "tree lined outer Ring Road," He seldom mentions the County's cost to buy the shopping center. He stands to make millions. It isn't free.

And your statement "only a liberal cynic or an anti-business zealot would begrudge the developers" shows very poor judgment. This county just passed a $55 million referendum for the Forest Preserve District, in Antioch a multi-million referendum to expand two schools, a library referendum in another place, and you want us to hand a developer $14 million? Only a simple-minded sentimentalist would ask that of a liberal cynic. There's nothing anti-business about turning down another multi-million dollar tax expense. The College of Lake County site is best.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

No one likes to be sold, but we all like to buy

Seldom do I write a column based on two totally unrelated incidents, but this one is just that. The first incident occurred in Southern California and involved an over-zealous salesman. The second was a letter from a friend that included a funny little story. Let's begin with the story.

A newly hired salesman named Sam, wrote his first sales call report back to his boss. The sales manager was stunned when he read the report because it was obvious he had hired a man who was nearly illiterate. Here's what Sam wrote:

"Dere Bos. I seen a kumpany which ain't never bot nuthin frum us so I sole them a hunerd thousands dollars wurth of guds. I'm goin to Sant Lewis now. Sam."

While the sales manager tried to figure out how to fire Sam, the next sales report came from St. Louis. It read:

"Dere Bos. I cum hear and soled them half a million dollars wurth. I'll trie her hear anuther weak. Sam."

Unsure of what to do, the sales manager asked the company president, Wilson Jones, for advice. The president read Sam's letters and promised to handle the problem. The following day the president sent copies of Sam's two sales call reports to all sales reps. He attached the following memo:

"Dere Sails teem memburs: We ben tryin two hart to spel instead of sel. Plez reed Sellin Sam's sails call reports and then let's get on the rode and do like he's dun. Wilson Jones."

Selling: a lost art.

I've met many good salespersons like Sam, even hired one or two. Peter on the other hand is a world apart from Selling Sam. Peter is the manager of a clothing store in Southern California. He is sauve, literate, and has movie-star looks. He is also arrogantly aggressive on the sales floor. I don't know whether he was trying to impress his sales staff or had a big quota to meet. In any event, he turned on the fake charm and turned up the pressure.

Apparently, Peter thought I was a little slow, so he lavished me with praise. He kept telling me how good I'd look in suits of browns and greens. I told him from the start I was looking for a blue suit.

Selling is a service

I'll take a "Sellin' Sam" over a "Pushy Peter" any day. Here are some sales tips for becoming a "Sellin' Sam."

- Listen to your customers. Ask questions to find out what they want, and hear what they say. Then help them get it.
- Always tell the truth.
- Don't push, instead subtlely suggest.
- Never argue with a customer. You may be right and you may be able to prove it.
- Don't get too slick or polished. If you're just too good to be true, you're probably false.
- Show the benefits and let your customers sell themselves.

New store is bargain hunter's dream

By LESLIE PIOTROWSKI
Staff Reporter

X-Treme Value is Lake County's newest deep discount store, featuring designer clothing and other items at 60 to 80 percent of retail prices. But one won't find it at Gurnee Mills. Its home is Zion.

The store's co-owner Jay Kastar, a resident of Gurnee, said he looked into the possibility of locating the store in Round Lake Beach, Mundelein or Zion.

"Zion had the right clientele," said Kastar. "I thought the Kmart Plaza would be a good draw and the community would benefit. The community has been good to me so far."

The opening is also good for the business strip located just north of Wadsworth Rd., which has seen a number of store closings in the past several years.

Kastar unofficially opened the store in early May. The official grand opening, with a ribbon-cutting ceremony, was Friday, June 4.

The store, which encompasses 5,100 square feet of floor space, carries clothing for women, men and children. Brands include Tommy Hilfiger, Ralph Lauren, Liz Claiborne, Nautica, Jones of New York, Levis, Calvin Klein, DKNY and Guess. It also carries thousands of private label selections. Additionally, it offers shoes, accessories and home items, such as pots and pans, picture frames, pillows and comforters.

The key draw of the store is that it provides quality items for substantially low prices.

"You can buy a pair of pants here for $5 that would be $19 at another store," said Kastar. "I don't think you'll find it cheaper any place else."

The merchandise, which comes from department stores nationwide, is primarily made up of out-of-season goods, excess inventory and customer returns.

"Sometimes department stores never resell returned items, even if they were returned only because of the size," said Kastar.

Thus far, women's blouses and tops are the store's best-selling items. Children's shoes are also selling well. Kastar said young people are primarily buying designer items.

"I tried to model the store after a boutique," he said. "But it's a little bit of a treasure hunt to come in here."

Kastar has been in the business for nine years. He was a liquidation manager for Spiegel's for six years and a manager of event sales for several stores in Mississippi. He now co-owns X-Treme Value with Hudson Salvage, Inc. of Hattiesburg, Miss.

This marks the first time he has owned a store.

"I wanted the challenge," he said.

Kastar's goal is to open more X-Treme Value stores in the Chicagoland area and beyond. In the long run, he would like to see 500 stores nationwide.

X-Treme Value, located at 3363 Sheridan Road, is open seven days a week. Its hours are: Monday to Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Survey finds worker emphasis on corporate culture not lost on executives

For some time now, employees have been saying that a good fit between their jobs and personal lives is a priority. According to a new study, executives at many major U.S. firms appear to be listening. One-third (33 percent) of those polled place a positive work environment at the top of the list of considerations for keeping employees satisfied. This was up from nine percent in 1993, surpassing both "praise" and "compensation."

The survey was developed by Robert Half International Inc., the world's first and largest staffing service specializing in the accounting, finance and information technology fields. It was conducted by an independent research firm and includes responses from 150 executives with the nation's 1,000 largest companies.

"For a growing number of workers, corporate culture is the key determinant in their choice to stay with an organization long term," said Max Messmer, chairman and CEO of Robert Half International Inc. and author of the just released Human Resources Kit for Dummies® (IDG Books Worldwide, 1999). "While compensation will always be a strong motivator, today's professionals are placing greater emphasis on issues ranging from management style and degree of autonomy to intellectual challenge and relaxed dress code policies," he said.

Robert Half International Inc. has more than 240 locations in North America, Europe and Australia, and offers online job search services at www.rhii.com.

Experts offer tips for instant decorating drama

If you find yourself gazing enviously at the pages of glossy decorating magazines or at home-store displays, wondering how you can transform your bland, boring rooms into stylish spaces, here are some decorating suggestions from the interior design experts at Laura Ashley.

• Plain walls in white or ivory are fine if you are lucky enough to have beautiful furnishings to place against an unassuming backdrop. For most people, however, walls provide the perfect canvas to express their individuality through color and pattern, regardless of the state of their furniture. Wallpaper is often the solution for transforming any room from bland to brilliant. Laura Ashley offers an extensive array of patterns that give a room instant personality. Its Colourwash wallpaper is another option if you want to add depth and texture without pattern.

• The designers at Laura Ashley recommend enlivening old upholstered furniture with slipcovers. Sofas, armchairs and ottomans get a new lease on life with fabric slipcovers. Among the options at Laura Ashley are bold stripes and checks, luxurious damasks, and lively floral or paisley prints in cottons or linens.

• Many dining rooms have entire matched dining suites in some shade of brown wood. If your dining room has too much dark wood and you can't replace your furniture, think about covering it. A simple table cover that drapes gracefully almost to the floor — or, even better, has another one layered over it — adds a rich designer look. Even the ugliest dining chair can be turned into a beauty with a tailored slipcover, either just covering the seat and back or to the floor. If you have additional pieces of wood furniture, like buffets or servers, add narrow fabric runners to the top to protect them and provide additional color.

Bland rooms can be easily transformed with just a few savvy tricks, according to the Laura Ashley design experts. Here, a dining room gets a strong dose of decorating drama, starting with a striking wallpaper, Cavalry Stripe. Simple yet elegant window treatments, combining Henderson Toile print with crisp Sultan Stripe, turn the windows into the room's focal point. To cover up an abundance of matching dark wood furniture, Cavalry Stripe and Marlow damask are used on the chairs, with Kelso and Marlow damask for layered tablecloths. All fabrics and wallpapers are from Laura Ashley.

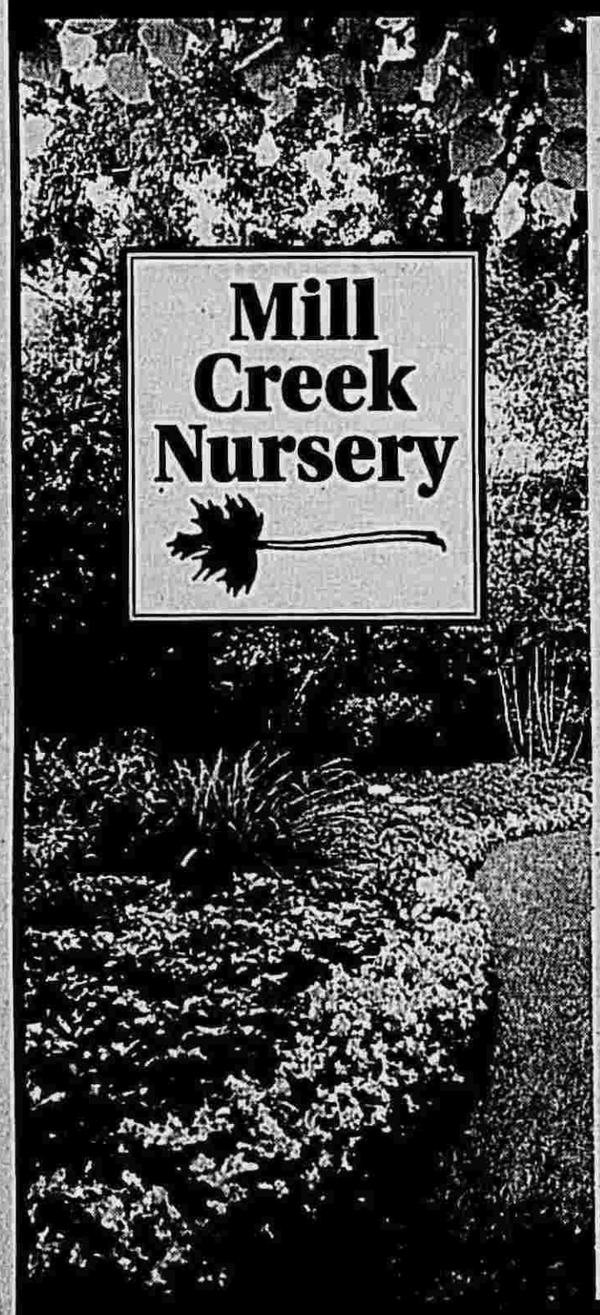

• If your windows just seem to blend into the background, make them more important. Laura Ashley suggests you go for the dramatic and elegant, rather than the fussy or overlayered. Simple fabric panels in a lovely pattern or texture, classic valances or swags, or functional fabric blinds like Roman shades can transform a room from the ordinary to the extraordinary.

• Don't overlook the power of a few good accessories to make a strong design statement. Classic lamps with shades coordinated to your fabrics and wallpapers, pillows in rich textures and patterns, luxurious throws, and accents like vases, candlesticks and books add a spark of individuality to a room.

• One of the best ways to keep things interesting in your rooms, say the Laura Ashley experts, is to create an exciting combination of furnishings. Play off pattern against pattern, like floral with stripes or textured damask with checks, don't match furniture styles in every piece, and throw in a touch of the unexpected, like an unusual collection of objects or art. The magic, as they say, is in the mix.

Laura Ashley Home Stylists, trained interior design professionals, will come to your home for a personal design consultation for a one-time fee of $75 (for up to three rooms), refundable with purchases of $750. For information, call (800) 429-7678.

Beautiful flowers 'stem' from proper care

Looking for an addition to your home that is natural, uncontrived and easy to live with? Try flowers. Fresh, fragrant and always beautiful, flowers can light up a room and even a heart.

For Jane Packer, author of "The Complete Guide to Flower Arranging" (DK), you don't need a special occasion to indulge in fresh flowers. "People do buy flowers solely for themselves," she says, "and on a regular basis, too."

From the simplest posies to the most intricate bouquets, Packer has spent a lifetime's experience with flowers, sharing her insight and guidance on how to choose and work with all varieties of blooms.

Before starting any fresh-flower arrangement, Packer recommends that you prepare and treat your flower stems to make the arrangement last longer and look better. Additionally, she says, "cleaning and cutting stems correctly encourages water uptake and makes the stems more visually attractive in a transparent container."

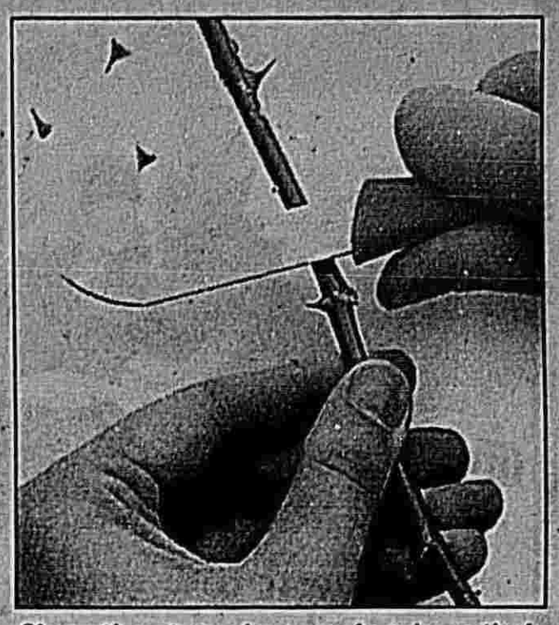

Begin by breaking off all leaves that will be below the water line in the vase. Clean the stems by scraping them down with a small knife to smooth bumps and remove any thorns or dead plant tissue. Then, cut the stems on a slant to create a larger surface area to take up water.

Whenever possible, she says, use flower food — it contains chemicals that promote water uptake.

Whether you buy them at the market or pick them from your garden, fresh flowers make the perfect addition for brightening up any room in your home.

Break off all leaves that will be below the water line. This neatens the appearance of the stems through transparent containers and helps keep the water fresh.

Clean the stems by scraping down their length with a small knife to get rid of thorns and smooth off bumps, and remove any old plant tissue.

Cut stems on a slant to create a larger surface area to take up water. This also makes stems neater and easier to push into wet florist's foam and vase displays.

Evergreens, Azaleas, Rhododendrons: The foundation plants that add beauty and color to your home

Lush foundation planting not only enhances the look of your home, but it promotes the atmosphere of welcome before you've even opened your front door. Evergreens, especially, say, "Welcome." The luxuriant blooms on rhododendrons and azaleas usually last two to four weeks, but if you plant varieties that bloom at different times, you can enjoy months of color, not to mention the faithful, verdant background of green that is maintained.

You'll want plants whose form, texture and color create a pleasing bridge between your home and garden. These will be appreciated every time people enter or exit and should provide year-round interest. The best foundation plantings soften angles, blend indoor and outdoor environments, and enhance scale. You will enjoy how plantings can accent structural features by "leading" your eye to the door, around a corner or along a wall.

Begin with the evergreens. They do a terrific job of providing a constant backbone of color and visual warmth, and their needs are simple and easy. The sun lovers like at least six hours of sun, but most like light shade. They all appreciate good drainage, so plant the root balls high — in a shallow but wide hole. Water often, but lightly. They all like good mulching to keep roots cool. Evergreens love to be planted in acidic soil.

Acidic soil? Sounds awful, but it's not. Soil quality is measured on a pH scale of 0 to 14, with values below 7 considered to be "acidic" and those above 7 to be "alkaline." Different plants thrive in different kinds of soil, so "acid-loving plants," like conifers, azaleas and rhododendrons, will do best in soils with pH levels below 7.

You can test your soil with a kit from your garden center or by mailing a sample to a soil-testing lab. If you find that you need to modify the pH for evergreens, just feed them Miracid® Plant Food — they will thrive. A common misconception about Miracid® is that if you use it in the soil for an evergreen, an impatiens might not be happy there too. Go ahead and use it. You would be amazed at the compatibility all plants have with Miracid®.

There are two categories of evergreens from which to choose. The conifers (needled ones) include yew, hemlock, cedar, cypress, pine, juniper, spruce and fir. The broadleaf ones include those bloomin' rascals — rhododendron and azalea, along with laurels, pieris, hollies, pachysandra, boxwood and leucothoe. A good mix of texture and color can be quite pleasing, so try many types. Each category has varieties that grow large and types that stay compact. Make sure you take mature size into account before you dig that hole. When well-fed, it doesn't take long for a happy plant to achieve maximum size.

If the leaves and needles of already established foundation plantings are signaling that they are unhappy, here's an interesting tip. Lime from the concrete foundations of your home may be leaching into the soil, causing evergreens to turn yellow and die. Miracid® restores the proper soil chemistry and actually can save the life of your plant. Once you've applied the Miracid® food, either in the soil or with the Miracle-Gro® No-ClogTM 4 in 1 Lawn & Garden Feeder, the response is quick. The double-acting nutrients feed through both the roots and the leaves.

People often tend to forget that creating gardens is fun. The gardens closest to where people walk should fairly shout out how much fun they are. Appreciate the liveliness and variety of your plantings. Get excited about how they interact with your house.

Search diligently for plants you want to appreciate every day. Collecting rhododendrons to prolong bloom is great fun. Love your choices. If you are not satisfied, don't be afraid to change them ... and you'll feel welcome too!

Brides to look back to older times

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Staff Reporter

A walk down yesterday's memory lane to create today's memories will be possible at the "Wedding Portraits of the Past" Vintage Fashion Show Saturday, June 26.

A program encompassing "over 100 years of antique wedding gowns, music and memories" is planned.

The show is to be held beginning with luncheon served at 11:30 a.m. at Maravella's Restaurant & Banquet Hall, Washington Street and Grand Avenue, in Fox Lake.

The Lutheran Church of All Saints, 5800 State Park Road, Fox Lake, is sponsoring the program.

Models and music are being provided by the church. Pastor Nathan Anderson is providing the clothing from his private collection.

Vintage wedding gowns ranging from the 1850's to 1970's will be worn by models who will glide down the runway with a blending of men's and children's clothing.

Having begun collecting clothing as a child, Anderson was in his 20's when he began seeking vintage clothing.

Following a first purchase of an 1890's silk blouse at a resale shop in Michigan, Anderson has visited numerous such shops, estate sales and flea markets throughout the midwest. This has resulted in a collection of hundreds of articles of clothing, shoes, jewelry and hats which he now owns.

Among the treasured items include 1920's and 1930's tuxedos, a 1930 wedding gown, a 1930's velvet wedding dress and a plaid taffeta wedding dress.

In the early years, brides wore their best dress to be married in. Later, the move to the traditional white color came about.

Limited tickets, which must be purchased or reserved in advance, may be obtained at $15 each for adults, $7 for children age 10 and under, by contacting the church at 587-7727.

New registries expand gift options

Increasingly, the traditional down comforter and Cuisinart® have been sharing space on the wish lists of bridal couples with home electronics, luggage and gardening gear. However, going from store to store, registering for the full range of gifts they desire, often robs the betrothed of the one thing they probably need most — time.

"People celebrating special occasions today really want a blend of traditional and nontraditional gifts, preferably at one location that is easily accessible to friends and family," says Jean Haley, director of customer relationship marketing for Sears.

"We've recently launched a new, unique registry that allows 'nearlyweds' and their loved ones the opportunity to consolidate their wishes by tapping into the many sides of Sears," says Haley.

"Trends also continue to indicate the need for more practical gift options. More couples are marrying later and purchasing homes sooner. As many as 70 percent of couples register together," she notes.

Couples also will find that the time invested in new "any-occasion" registries will continue to yield rewards after the wedding. Any-occasion registries keep customers' wish lists in the system, enabling friends and relatives to continue using them as a resource.

Affordable fashion options abound for the contemporary wedding

With a record number of weddings forecast as we approach the year 2000, much attention is focused on the cost of "tying the knot." Research indicates that in many cases the bride and groom are footing the bill and they are savvy consumers when it comes to seeking value for their dollar.

Good news awaits the contemporary bride-to-be as she shops for the perfect gown. There is a multitude of styles available, even for those with a budget under $1000.

"Many brides are under the impression that the only affordable options are found at discount warehouses and sample sales," says Cindi Freeburn, director of design and advertising for Alfred Angelo, a world leader in the marketing of bridal apparel. "Nothing could be further from the truth. Bridal salons who work with manufacturers such as Alfred Angelo are poised to offer brides hundreds of styles ranging from $250-$800." In addition, most of these shops special order the gown for the bride, so she is getting a brand new garment, ordered to meet her measurement specifications. When determining "value," a bride should be considering not only the cost of the gown, but the need for service and alterations as well.

Fashion is not taking a back seat to price, however. Freeburn indicates that Alfred Angelo alone has over 100 bridal designs from which to choose in the $250-$800 price range. "Silhouettes range from simple, elegant and tailored to elaborate, embellished ballgowns," she states. "While satin remains the most popular fabric, we have beautiful gowns in tulle, chiffon, crepe and even silk shantung within these price points." The diversity of the contemporary collections means that even on a budget, every bride can find a beautiful gown that compliments her figure.

Another important factor in the pursuit of the affordable gown, is availability in a wide range of sizes. According to Freeburn, Alfred Angelo has established a reputation for meeting the needs of the Plus Size bride. "We offer over 24 styles in sizes 16W-28W at any given time." Once again, the fashion options are many, ranging from slim silhouettes, to A-lines, to full-skirted traditional styles. "The one common denominator is that a regular bra may be worn for the bride's comfort," comments Freeburn. "We work with plus size women when developing our Women's Collection and they are very candid about what they think is flattering and comfortable."

Service is a key element when thoughts turn to outfitting the bridal party. Brides and their attendants should look for gowns from a manufacturer who offers a full range of sizes and colors and for a retailer who has expertise in measuring and alterations. The challenges of having a half-dozen women of various shapes and sizes look well in one particular style are numerous. According to Freeburn, Alfred Angelo, one of only a handful of firms which market both bridal and bridesmaid gowns, offers all of their bridesmaid styles in both large sizes and in extra-length. This offer has established the company as a leader in the bridesmaid field. In addition, the extensive color palette enables a bride to "customize" her wedding party by selecting a style that is flattering to all, in the color scheme of her dreams.

Adventure awaits for millennium honeymooners

Worried that the Y2K bug will spoil your upcoming wedding plans? Instead of looking at the glass as half-empty, why not take advantage of the millennium's romantic potential and add some spice to your honeymoon.

If you've spent time perusing the nation's newspapers and magazines over the past several months, you've probably been overwhelmed with the amount of coverage the upcoming millennium has received. Whether a product is marketing itself as the 'official' (fill in the blank) of the millennium, or doomsayers are predicting the end of the world, the new millennium is enjoying more than its 15 minutes of fame. And one would expect that it's only going to intensify as the year 2000 approaches

Savvy couples hoping to capitalize on this wave of excitement over the millennium have had January 1, 2000 marked on their calendars for months-and even years.

As chance would have it, the final day of this century falls on a Friday. Meaning, of course, that in addition to a multitude of swinging parties around the globe that evening, the new millennium will fall on a Saturday-an ideal wedding day. Can you imagine telling your grandchildren that you and your spouse were one of the very first couples of the new millennium?

The honeymoon could immediately follow the reception. But where would you go? Many millennium couples have booked Caribbean cruises. The Millennium Society is planning global parties in each of the world's 24 time zones. Their motto? "Do something great for civilization and have a ball doing it!"

John and Lara Olson of St. Paul, Minnesota are taking an alternative route to their millennium honeymoon. Having been married since 1997, the Olson's are strongly considering a second honeymoon to celebrate the millennium. "We feel like we missed out the first time around," says John. "We've already had an enjoyable honeymoon, but I really feel that my wife and I could symbolically renew our vows while bringing in the new millennium."

The Olson's are not alone in their thinking. A large percentage of cruise ships, airlines and hotels are booked solid for the weeks surrounding January 1, 1999.

Equip your kitchen with the best tools

After you've chosen your china pattern and unwrapped the last piece of stemware, it's time to buy functional items to help you cook every day — not just when company arrives for dinner.

When you're equipping your first kitchen, remember that half the battle of being a good cook is having the proper tools to do the job. According to experts, there are three indispensable tools to outfit your new kitchen: a food processor, cutlery and cookbooks. Food processors are great timesaving tools and now are available in large sizes (9- and 11-cup) and smaller sizes. For example, KitchenAid, the maker of premium appliances, has just introduced the Little Ultra Power food processor, a 5-cup version of its top-rated bigger model. Designed for everyday use, it comes with a minibowl for smaller jobs like chopping herbs or mincing garlic.

High-quality kitchen cutlery can last a lifetime, but quality also makes knives safer and more comfortable to use. Choose knives with a metal bolster between the blade and handle to add weight and balance and to ensure safety. Knives with high-carbon steel are best, like Four Star and Professional's from J.A. Henckels. These knives use an exclusive new process called Sintermetal Component Technology to produce blades with optimum cutting performance.

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Dear Search:
What is the rule on companies and severance pay? I left a company after 3 1/2 years due to lay off, and I was not offered any severance pay. I was told by a friend that I had it coming to me and that I should contact the company to find out why I have not received it yet. Please give me your ideas on how I should approach the situation. T.S.-Lakemoor

Dear T.S.:
Your friend is feeding you improper information. Be advised that severance pay is not a "given". Companies are not required to give an employee severance pay for any reason whatsoever. Severance pay is a gift of sorts that often means "hope this softens the blow". Your friend may be confusing the serverance pay with unemployment compensation, which you may be eligible for. Contact your nearest Illinois Department of Employment Security office, which for you would probably be the Waukegan office (although you can contact any Illinois facility) , and they will have you fill out the forms necessary for which you may apply for the compensation while you are actively seeking future employment. You should have no trouble collecting as long as the reason for your termination is uncontested. The Illinois Department of Employment Security has launched an effort to crack down on unemployment fraud. Therefore, be sure that you are actively seeking employment with an emphasis on actively. Be prepared when you go to apply at your nearest office to supply the representative with your employer's name, address, dates of employment, paycheck stubs if you have them, and a good attitude. You will then be required to meet with a job service counselor who will monitor your activity and offer recommendations as to possible job listings that may be available. You will also be required to check in periodically.

Dear Search:
I recently spent a fortune to have my resume typed by a service that omitted the year that I graduated from college. They told me they did it, but could you please tell me what you would believe is the reason for not including that on a resume? I am proud of my accomplishment and feel it should be included. R.H.-Lake Forest

Dear R.H.,
It doesn't sound as though anyone is trying to shrink your accomplishment. As I understand it, your degree is included in your resume; however, just the date of graduation was left out. The reason I can guess would be that a potential employer could possibly calculate your age, which could help or hurt depending on the position. If you feel more comfortable having it in, ask the service to do so, but it is not necessarily needed.

Note: Nancy Sakol is a licensed personnel professional and President of Superior Personnel in Gurnee.

Landmark Designs

NEPTUNE
(406-58LP60)

The Neptune (406-58) offers symmetry and simplicity on the exterior, with a spacious interior floor plan at 1,157 square feet. The inset covered entry is lit by a door-side window, and opens toward a coat closet straight ahead. Living and sleeping quarters are on the left while the kitchen and dining rooms are on the right. A convenient storage area in the rear of the single car garage could be used for storage of bicycles, tools, or yard equipment.

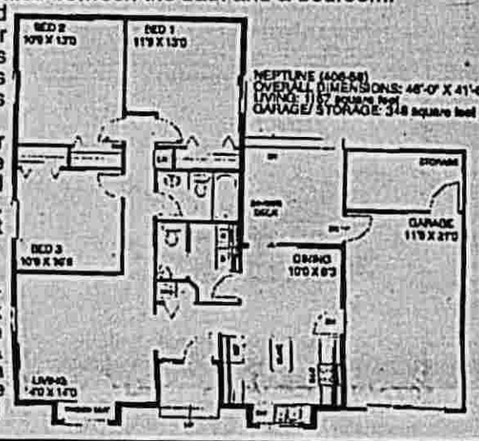

Access to the kitchen with bags of groceries is a very convenient one step up from the garage. There is also a door from the garage onto a covered deck as well as access from the dining room. This makes it ideal for planning outdoor parties or for easy accessibility for doing yard work.

The unique U-shaped kitchen has a bay window for the sink and dishwasher. The cabinets stop at the wall, eliminating hard-to-reach corner cabinets. There is an abundance of counter space beside the refrigeration and on both sides of the range. A traditional center island completes this bright, spacious, and inviting kitchen.

Down the hall to the rear of the home, a full bath on the right is shared by three large bedrooms. A hall linen closet is ideally located between the bath and a bedroom.

For a comfortable spot to sit quietly and read, or do needlework in a well lit area, or even a spot to meditate, a window seat is well placed in the living room. From this vantage point, one could also see who is stopping by to visit.

The Neptune is an exceptional plan for a young family just starting out, or for the retired couple that needs less home and yet wants one that is still fun and spacious. The dimensions of this home also make it ideal for narrow lots.

For a study kit of the NEPTUNE (406-58LP60) send $14.95, to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd. E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 (Specify plan name & number for kit). For a Dream Home plan book featuring our most popular home plans, send $7.95, or call 1-800-562-1151

Pet OF THE WEEK

BEN

Ben is this weeks, "PET OF THE WEEK." Ben loves to lie on the coffee table and watch TV. His tongue is always sticking out when he does this. Ben loves people, kids and especially people who will pet him and rub his belly until he grunts with happiness!
